Farmers or Stockholders?
Sunk Ships Not Wanted
Artificial Twins? Not Yet!
Lo! The Poor Duke

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Railroads object to the St. Lawrence Canal project because it might divert freight from their lines. It would do just that and cut 7 cents a bushel from export charges on wheat, enabling American wheat to compete with wheat from the Argentine and elsewhere.

That canal would increase one million dollars a day profits of farmers in the Middle West. Which is more important to this country, a million farmers working from dawn till dark or twenty thousand owners of railroad stock not working at all?

Which group does more for the United States? For which group should the United States do more?

This country, to oblige Japan and England, will scrap now battleships that it will need later. It is suggested that twelve ships be sunk and used as a breakwater near Los Angeles. It's a poor suggestion. What Los Angeles and all the Western coast need is not battleships sunk, but battleships, submarines and flying machines in action, ready for the Japanese that take so kindly to California's soil.

Science threatens one horror after another. Julian S. Huxley, son of the great Huxley, is the latest horrifier. First, in a short time, mothers will have girl or boy babies as they choose. That would be horrible indeed, for 80 per cent. would choose boys to flatter foolish fathers. That would cut down the population. Later, when excess population begins to worry us, the all-boy-baby scheme might be useful.

Now Huxley says that soon twins may be ordered at will. He has already done it with newts—two baby newts are hatched from one egg instead of one. It can be done with human beings, says he. And the twins would be absolutely alike in color, character, sex and everything. That is a dreadful thought. But nature prevents sameness. There are no two leaves alike in the greatest forest. And, luckily, nature is more powerful than Huxley.

Pity poor Westminster, once the richest duke in England, now the most worried. Little did his father think, as he rode his great Derby winner, Ormonde, in Victoria's jubilee procession, that his son would move to an African ranch to escape taxation, or that the American girl, Nancy Langhorne Shaw Astor, would buy and live in his magnificent estate, Cliveden, and go from there to the House of Commons, a member.

England at last is taxing the lands of dukes. They are allowed and forced to pay part of the expense of government. And the English government knows how to COLLECT taxes. That is more than can be said for the land whence the Astors, in England, draw their income.

Question for the Republican administration, which may be surprised when Congressmen are elected next Fall:

Are you going to take the Alaskan Railroad, now owned by the government, representing fifty-six millions of public money, and lease it to private individuals that they may work Alaska for all the traffic the territory will bear?

The schemers expect to get that road from the people on their own terms for ninety-nine years.

The President is going to Alaska this Summer. He really WANTS to protect the people that elected him, and if he will put off that railroad grab until he has gone over the Alaskan Railroad, the grab won't go through. Hence the rush tactics.

Senator Tom Watson of Georgia says Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, holds office illegally and might be arrested on the affidavit of any citizen. A statute passed in Washington's time makes it illegal for anybody engaged in "commerce or business" to be Secretary of the Treasury.

You can see why that law was passed then, and you can see why it would be foolish now. Mr. Mellon is an extraordinarily able business man and has proved it. That kind of a man is needed where the President put him. Our government is 99 per cent. a business undertaking, requiring business ability; to exclude it would be bad for government.

If Senator Watson is right about the law, it will change. This is the age of specialists.

RECORD HAUL OF DRUG IS MADE

Suspect Held by Officers After Being Trailed Through South End District

Police of the Lagrange street station today seized the largest quantity of opium taken in a raid in Boston for many years. They got nine pounds, valued at between $3,000 and $2,500.

The seizure was made at a room in Healy's Hotel, Washington street, immediately after the arrest by Sergeant A. V. Nixon and Patrolman Callahan of the Lagrange street station of a man who gave his name as John E. Smith, and his address first as Milwaukee and later as New York.

Smith was arraigned in Municipal Court, pleaded not guilty and asked for a continuance.

Later he was arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes, charged with unlawfully possessing twenty-eight cans of opium. He was held in $1,000 bail for a hearing on March 1. He is out on $1,000 bail for violating the State narcotic laws.

Smith was seen entering South End groceries and Chinese business establishments and was arrested by Nixon and Callahan on suspicion he was selling moonshine whiskey.

When searched $1,215 was found in his pockets, together with a key. The key fitted and unlocked a door in the hotel, where the police found two large leather bags containing the opium.

Smith engaged two attorneys, Leo P. Doherty and John P. Walsh, to defend him, and there is possibility of a legal battle arising over the case, as the lawyers claim that, even if the opium is proved to have belonged to the prisoner, which they declare the government has not yet done, the police had no right to take a man's key and then search his hotel room.

5 RESCUED BY POLICE AT FIRE

Aged Woman and Four Children Carried Out at Blaze in Dorchester

The heroism of two patrolmen, who groped their way through smoke-filled hallways today after they discovered a fire in a two-and-one-half-story wooden dwelling at No. 1 Phillips place, Dorchester, saved the lives of four small children and an aged woman, all of whom were trapped in the building, partially overcome by smoke.

The officers, Patrolmen David Caswell and John O'Shea, saw flames bursting from the basement as they passed the house. Entering, they made their way to the second floor, where they found Mrs. Amy Henderson, sixty years old, and two small children, Wendell and Curtis Butterfield, aged three and five, respectively.

All were more or less stupefied by the smoke-fumes, which were filtering into the apartment, and none was able to leave the place without assistance.

Patrolman O'Shea took the two children and carried them to safety, while Officer Caswell helped the woman down the stairway. Then leaving the thinly-clad survivors in the care of neighbors, the policemen re-entered the building and made their way to a sleeping room on the first floor.

Here they found Arnold and Prevost Henderson, aged three and five years, lying semi-conscious on a bed. Hastily the officers carried the youngsters to the street, after which they went into the burning house a third time to make sure that no one else was inside.

Firemen were obliged to battle the blaze for more than two hours before they could get it under control. The fire started from a defective furnace-pipe in the basement, and destroyed the greater part of the building, at an estimated loss of $2,500.

The parents of the two Henderson children, on the first floor, Mr. and Mrs. Greenough Henderson, were forced to flee from the building in scanty attire, as were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Butterfield, parents of the children who were saved from the second-floor rooms.

Fordney Says Congress Will Get Measure, Acceptable to Republicans

Washington, Feb. 17.—A soldier bonus bill "such as the Republicans can and will accept," will be presented to the House within ten days by the Ways and Means Committee, Chairman Fordney announced in the House today.

The committee met to hear representatives of the American Legion, but did not discuss methods of raising revenue for the bonus.

A sweeping tide of approval in Congress followed President Harding's advocacy of the sales tax to raise the money for the soldiers' bonus.

Republican and Democratic leaders after studying the effect of the President's letter said that passage of the adjusted compensation measure carry-

TAYLOR SERVED JAIL TERM FOR WOMAN'S CRIME

An hitherto unpublished chapter in the eventful life of William Cunningham Deane-Tanner, known to the motion picture world as William Desmond Taylor, film director, who was found mysteriously slain in his Hollywood bungalow, is revealed in the following fascinating tale as written exclusively for Universal Service by Mr. H. M. Horkheimer, a leading figure in the motion picture industry.

Mr. Horkheimer was, perhaps closer to the murdered director than any other living person and was the man who started Taylor on his career as a motion picture director. He relates for the first time the story of the mystery man's early life as it was told to him by Taylor himself six years ago.

Mr. Horkheimer believes a man—a blackmailer—holds the key to the situation.

The writer was one of the pioneers in the American film industry and for years was head of the Balboa Film Company.

Mayor Calls on Exchange for Names of Legislators Who Speculated

Mayor Curley today sent to officials of the Boston Stock Exchange a request that he be furnished the names of the legislators and brokers who purchased and sold Elevated stock one year before and six months after enactment of the Boston Elevated Street Railway Act of 1918.

While some names of legislators and brokers were mentioned in the legislative investigation last year, the Mayor in his communication to President Frank W. Remick and Secretary George A. Rich of the Stock Exchange requests the names of all such legislative members and brokers who speculated in the railway stock.

Mayor Curley also wishes to know the names of the brokers, both for purchasers and sellers, who appeared in each transaction.

The letter forges another link in the Mayor's fight for restoration of a 5-cent fare on the Elevated, and was coupled with the intimation that he might appeal to Speaker Young of the House of Representatives for co-operation to compel such legislation. This may take place, he said, because of Governor Cox's failure to ask for any action.

The Mayor announced that a bill would be drafted on the "L" situation and filed early next week by Representative John McCormack.

Mayor Curley in his letter to Stock Exchange officials said it appeared during the legislative investigation last year that some members of the House speculated in "L" stock, and that their votes may have been affected by the prospective profits of this speculation.

The Mayor said it appeared that "similar means were taken by promoters to influence corruptly expressions of public opinion through the newspapers and otherwise." He said he deemed it vital that the "names of those speculating in 'L' shares at that critical period and participating in the stupendous profits which were to result from the enactment of the act" shall be revealed.

Favor Metropolitan Commission for "L"

The trustees of the Boston Elevated were severely criticized today by residents of Everett during a hearing before the legislative committee on metropolitan affairs on the bill of George Howland Cox to provide for the formation of a metropolitan transit commission that would take over all the powers and duties of the Boston transit commission.

Among those who attacked the public trustees of the Elevated for alleged neglect of Everett were: John F. O'Connor, representing the Everett Board of Trade; Charles C. Long, representing the city solicitor of Everett, and Mayor Harrison, all of whom spoke in favor of a metropolitan commission. All expressed the belief that a metropolitan commission, whose members would be chosen from various communities, would be more responsive to the people and their needs than the present board of trustees of the Elevated and the present transit board. O'Connor said that the trustees have not yet constructed the $1,000,000 car barns in Everett that they were expressly ordered to build in 1920 by the Legislature.

Professor George F. Swain of Harvard College favored the bill on the ground that the transportation problem is a metropolitan one and not local.

The woman is expected to recover. She was unable to explain the gas leak and the police are investigating.

VAULTS BAR, CHOKES MAN, ALL IN PLAY

William Wilson of Monument avenue, Chelsea, has his playful moods. Today he was in the Charlestown Court for assaulting Nathan J. Sullivan of Spencer avenue, Chelsea. Sullivan is a soft-drink bartender. According to Sullivan, a companion of Wilson's shot up the place on January 10. The stranger was giving a little Wild West demonstration. Wilson closed the show, Sullivan said, by vaulting the bar and choking him. "All in play, judge," said Wilson. "Five dollars," said the court, or words to that effect.

GRANDDAUGHTER OF ROCKEFELLER IN ROMANCE

16-Year-Old Daughter of McCormicks to Wed Swiss Who Is 48

New York, Feb. 17.—Casting convention to the winds, the granddaughter of the richest man in the world has plighted her troth to a comparatively humble equestrian.

Mathilde McCormick, beautiful sixteen-year-old daughter of Harold F. McCormick of Chicago and his divorced wife, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller, is the girl.

Max Oser, forty-eigth years old, proprietor of a riding academy in Zurich, Switzerland, is the man. Miss McCormick's love affair developed in the rarified atmosphere of the Swiss Alps.

Her husband-to-be is a scion of a family noted in Basle, Switzerland. Though he makes his living through the medium of his Zurich riding academy, he is an amateur painter and "devoted to the simpler, finer things of life."

The words are those of young Miss McCormick herself, who said on a recent visit to New York:

"I am going to Chicago to ask permission of father and mother to carry out the understanding I have with Mr. Oser. I love him. He loves me. We want to marry.

"Our tastes are similar. I dislike society as the word is understood in America. I owe my life to Switzerland and I want to live there the rest of my life. I scribble a bit of poetry and I like to write.

"But the ambition of my life is to make a home for the man I love in the surroundings we both love. That is why I want father and mother to let me marry Max."

A close friend of Miss Mathilde said today that the young girl has already won the consent of her father to her matrimonial plans. She is now living with her father in the old Cyrus McCormick mansion on Rush street, Chicago.

Soon Mathilde hopes to win over her mother. If she succeeds, she and Mr. Oser will be married by Summer. If she fails to win the consent of her mother, why (as it was explained to the writer) Mathilde "regretfully will go through with her plans."

By "out of court" agreement in their recent divorce action, Mrs. McCormick obtained possession of both the lake forest and lake shore drive family mansions. Which explains in a measure why sturdy young Mathilde and her friend, Miss Julia Mangold of Zurich, are stopping in the Rush street house.

CORCORAN FAILS TO APPEAR IN PAUL CASE

Court Suggests That Bank Take Possession of Jamaica Plain Property

William J. Corcoran, former district attorney of Middlesex County, who has turned State's evidence in the Boston blackmail cases, and against whom disbarment proceedings are pending, failed to appear today in the Supreme Court to answer a motion in other litigation. Notice had been sent him by registered mail to his latest address at Portchester, N. Y.

William H. Garland, attorney for Scott W. Paul of Methuen, seeks to have a receiver appointed for Corcoran's property in order to obtain possession of a house and land in Jamaica Plain, in which Corcoran owns the equity. Paul sued Victor Searles for alleged alienation of the affections of his wife. He declared that although Corcoran, at that time attorney for Paul, received $50,000 in settlement of the case, but $5,000 was turned over to Paul. He seeks by the present motion to recover on the balance.

There are first and second mortgages on the Jamaica Plain property. Both are held by the Five Cents Savings Bank of Boston. The second mortgage, which is for $12,000, was originally owned by Attorney Daniel H. Coakley. Both mortgages are overdue and the taxes on the property have not been paid for two years.

The court suggested that as receivership proceedings were unusual, Attorney Garland agree to the bank taking possession of the property, thus enabling him to proceed against the equity. The case was continued for a week to permit him to make a decision.

Leading opponents of the sales tax and of the bonus bill admitted that the President's letter was causing their ranks to crumble. This was found to be true in the House especially, where it had been regarded as almost impossible to secure a majority for the sales tax in any form.

Democratic leaders predicted that fully one-half of the Democratic members of the House would vote for the bonus bill with the sales tax.

In the Senate sales tax advocates were jubilant. It was admitted however, that opposition will be stronger in the Senate than in the lower branch of Congress.

TAYLOR'S PAST IS DELVED INTO FOR CLEWS

Investigators Trace Back to Birth in Ireland in Effort to Solve Crime

Los Angeles, Feb. 17.—Believing that a connected history of his life may prove an effective means of solving the mystery of his death, investigators of the murder of William Desmond Taylor today set about the task of compiling an account of his life activities, starting with his birth at Cappoquin, Ireland.

In data now in hand there are many breaks, confusing stories and total lack of information as to some periods. But authorities hope by painstaking work and world wide investigation to supply missing facts and check those already known.

Today deputy sheriffs were engaged in investigating an apparent discrepancy which arose when statements of William Davis, chauffeur for Mabel Normand, and George F. Arto were compared. Davis drove Miss Normand's car to the Taylor home the evening of the tragedy and waited outside until Taylor escorted Miss Normand to the car.

He has been questioned three times minutely. Davis told of having had a brief conversation with Henry Peavey, Taylor's negro servant, as he sat in the car.

Arto, who says he passed the Taylor house that evening, insists he saw a third man, a stranger, talking to Peavey and Davis. Davis, when questioned again last night, denied the presence of the third man. Peavey probably will be questioned again on this point.

It became known today that Charles Jones, former chief of police, who has been active in assisting District Attorney Woolwine in the investigation, has been retained by motion picture interests to aid in the solution of the mystery.

It was reported that Mack Sennett, famous producer, who left today for New York, had been one of those in the industry, who urged employment of private detectives to assist public officials in running down the murderer.

Attaches of the district attorney's office did not attach great significance to the questioning in Chicago of a Mrs. Mary Snyder. This step was merely the checking of one of the thousands of tips received, none of which will be overlooked. Neither did they give credence to a reported story of a Mexican recently returned from Chihuahua to the effect that he had met Edward F. Sands, missing valet-secretary of Taylor, in a small Mexican town.

Public Administrator Bryson declared he believed he could solve the mystery of the reported missing oil stocks of Taylor. He said he had in his possession 8,000 shares of an oil stock and a check of affairs of the dead man, and was inclined to believe that this was the stock Taylor had referred to when he consulted Mrs. J. M. Berger, income tax expert.

FREES "INNOCENT" MAN HELD AS MURDERER

Madison, Wis., Feb. 17.—John A. ("Dogskin") Johnson was released from the penitentiary today after serving ten years and six months of a life sentence for the murder of seven-year-old Annie Lemberger. Governor Blaine pardoned Johnson, declaring he was convinced Johnson did not commit the crime.

TAYLOR WENT TO JAIL FOR CRIME OF FIANCEE'S SISTER

William Taylor as a gay Lothario. Instead he was quite the opposite. He did not seek the company of women. Instead, they sought him.

From boyhood he was naturally shy, modest and retiring, but because of his wonderful character, personal magnetism and charm, women were drawn to him.

BLAMES BLACKMAILER.

The hand that struck down William Desmond Taylor is a hand that in the years that have lapsed since he came to America from Ireland, has ever pursued and blackmailed him with threats of revealing the dark chapter in his past that I will now unveil.

William Taylor came from a fine, old Irish family with entree into many of the best homes in England and Ireland. As a young man he was engaged to a beautiful young girl of one of the most aristocratic families in the section in which he resided.

The prospective sister-in-law of Taylor was married to a man much older than herself and their marriage could hardly have been called a love match. The young married woman was fond of gambling and often lost heavily at cards. Unfortunately there was among the society set, of which she was a member, what Taylor termed a "parasite." To this man she had become heavily indebted and she had given him checks on various occasions to discharge her gambling obligations.

LEARNS HER PLIGHT.

Taking advantage of her inability to meet these obligations the man forced his attentions upon her and eventually attempted to induce her to run away with him. One day their conversation on this subject was overheard by William Taylor. He went to the girl and asked her how much money she owed. When she informed him he offered her his last penny. The money he possessed at this time, however, was far from sufficient to cover the amount of her indebtedness.

In those days it was the custom in the better English homes to keep a safe in the home in which to secrete valuables. In desperation the young woman conceived the plan of robbing the safe in her own home, and thus by stealing the money and valuables of her husband to secure enough to pay her debts. She planned to rob him on a night when a big affair was being held and when a number of guests were present.

When the affair was over and the guests had retired for the night, it being a week-end party, the young married woman undressed, slipped on a dressing gown, took a pistol from her desk and quietly stole down the stairs to the library where the safe was located.

Knowing the combination of the strongbox from constant usage of it as a depository for her jewels, she noiselessly opened it. After removing a large sum of money she was startled by a noise behind her. She turned and came face to face with William Desmond Taylor.

Lurking in the shadows of the big library, unobserved, was the gambler. He had watched every movement of the girl and noted the advent of Taylor. Swiftly the fiend laid his plans. He conceived the idea of exposing Taylor as the real thief, knowing him to be in love with the sister of the woman.

ACCUSED BY GAMBLER.

Rushing from his hiding place he deliberately upset furniture and created so much confusion that the other occupants of the home were aroused. Guests and servants immediately poured into the library.

In a dramatic voice the gambler accused Taylor of robbing the safe. The husband of the woman asked his ashen-faced wife to explain her presence in the room. Blanched and trembling she told a story of having heard a noise in the library and of taking the revolver and running down the stairs to investigate. She said she had found Taylor there before the open safe, the money and securities in his hands.

Taylor, gallant to the last, glanced at the woman who accused him and then at her beautiful sister to whom he was engaged.

THREE YEARS IN JAIL.

He chose to remain silent. His failure to refute the charges of the gambler was considered an admission of guilt. The police were notified and he was taken to jail.

Taylor was tried, convicted of the robbery and sentenced to three years in prison. Within the grim walls of the penitentiary he atoned for the crime of another.

AUSTIN STACK TELLS OF PLANS BEING LAID TO BEAT IRISH TREATY

'HONORABLE PEACE' IS DESIRE

(This is the third article of Robert J. Prew's series on present conditions in Ireland, based on his personal observations and investigations during his tour of the country.)

By ROBERT J. PREW.

Dublin, Feb. 17.—The last chapter of the story of Ireland's fight for freedom has yet to be written. No one, not even the men who conducted the negotiations with Lloyd George and his colleagues in Downing street, regards the Anglo-Irish treaty as the last phase of the struggle.

President Griffith is believed to be content with it, but the Free Staters who follow Michael Collins remain Republicans at heart. They accept the treaty merely as a temporary accommodation which has brought peace to Ireland in time of need. They could foresee no early gain in continuing the fight for separation and independence against hopeless odds.

TO CONTINUE FIGHT.

On the other hand, Eamonn De Valera and his supporters regard as a bluff the British Premier's threat of intensified war on Ireland as the alternative to the treaty, and in any event were and still are prepared to continue the fight in the field for recognition of the Irish Republic.

Their position was explained to me by Austin Stack, T. D., in the first interview he has ever granted to a newspaper correspondent.

Mr. Stack was Minister for Home Affairs in Mr. De Valera's cabinet, a member of the mission which the former President took to London in July to establish a basis of negotiation with the British government. He has played a very prominent part in the fight for independence, and first became known outside of Ireland for the part he played in arranging the landing of Roger Casement in Tralee.

He was arrested and sentenced to imprisonment for life for the part he played in the Casement affair, but was afterwards "pardoned," only to be arrested for "seditious" activities and jailed in Mountjoy, Belfast, Manchester and other prisons. From Manchester he escaped back to Ireland, and up to the date of the truce was a member of the inner circle of republicans who organized and participated in the war of independence.

PREPARING CAMPAIGN.

"I cannot at this stage say along what lines we shall continue our fight for unfettered national sovereignty," said Mr. Stack. "We are now preparing our campaign and shall in due course, announce our program in detail. If elections are held under any new constitution, we shall put forward a candidate on a purely republican platform in every constituency, and we are already satisfied that we shall soon win the whole of nationalist Ireland back again to the republican ideal.

"We shall conduct an intensive educational campaign among the people designed to show them that the treaty leaves us as much in the grip of Britain as ever, that, in fact, all who subscribe to the treaty do, for the first time in the history of our country, accept British citizenship.

"Some of the Free Staters are now prepared to take the oath of allegiance to the British crown with the avowed intention of breaking it in the interests of national sovereignty when the occasion arises. We who voted against the so-called treaty can do no such thing. We will take no oath to which we do not wholeheartedly subscribe and to which we do not intend to be true in all circumstances.

DISAGREE WITH GRIFFITH.

"Mr. Griffith says the treaty brings peace. We don't agree. Peace can only be brought to Ireland by the form of settlement proposed by Mr. De Valera, under which the British would recognize the absoute sovereignty of Ireland, while we would give treaty guarantees to Britain removing her baseless fears that a free Ireland would constitute a danger to her national life. We want peace and amity with England. We have no idea of aggression upon her. But we insist on having an honorable peace.

"We cannot avoid the conclusion that the British threat of war as the alternative to the treaty was only another bluff, and the treaty negotiations should have called it, as President De Valera had called it twice previously.

"But we should not have shirked the fight in any event. Three years of war cost us about one thousand lives. Looking only at the result we achieved, that sacrifice was a good investment. It would have been a still better investment in the national interest to sacrifice another thousand lives in another year of war in order to win absolute sovereignty for Ireland and real peace with it."

PHOTOS SHOW IRISH FREE STATE SOLDIERS HAVE SNAP OF U. S. MARINE

INSPECTION BY MULCAHY

The Irish minister of defence looks over his old command which has taken over the Beggars Bush Barracks in Dublin where the hated auxiliary police held forth before the treaty. The equipment of the Irish Free State soldier is noteworthy, leather puttees completing his spick and span appearance. This company in particular has the well-set-up look of the tough training of our own marines.

ON MARCH
Smart appearance of this outfit on its way through Dublin to take over former headquarters of Black and Tans is a revelation to those who have visualized the Irish army as a sort of guerrilla organization

PRESENTING THE COLORS

Strikingly symbolic was this ceremony in the Beggars Bush Barracks of Dublin. Minister of Defence Mulcahy is presenting the Republic colors to Captain O'Daly of the outfit now occupying the former Black and Tan headquarters. Back of Mulcahy is Kevin O'Duffy, the chief of staff of the army, who succeeded Mulcahy. Scenes of great enthusiasm marked the day as the soldiers, led by pipers, marched through Dublin to the barracks. (All photos by International.)

42 OF KIDNAPED UNIONISTS ARE RELEASED

Outbreaks in Belfast Are Quieting Down; Only One Incident Reported During Night

Belfast, Feb. 17 (By the Associated Press).—Forty-two Ulster Unionists, kidnaped during the recent raids across the border from the South, have been released, Michael Collins, head of the provisional government, telegraphed Colonial Secretary Churchill today.

Last night was the quietest Belfast has experienced since the outbreak on Sunday night. The only incident reported was the firing of a shot at a watchman in the Mills Falls district. He escaped injury.

Return to their homes of a large number of the kidnaped Unionists has had a good effect on public opinion here, but the situation on the border continues to be one of danger owing to the proximity of rival forces at some points.

News of the arrangement for liaison commissions on each side of the frontier also was received with satisfaction and the hope is widely expressed that they will become operative as quickly as possible. Considerable preliminary work is necessary before the commissions can begin to function, however.

Ulster's army of special constables on the border has elaborately equipped defences, including strategically placed positions protected by barbed wire entanglements and sand bags, much like those used in the war.

They are also supplied with an abundance of firearms. It is believed that the Irish Republican army is equally well armed and stationed, and the readiness of both sides is pointed to as a reason for quick establishment of the liaison commissions.

The local president of the Transport and General Workers' Union, in a letter to the Belfast Telegraph, says:

"If there is no change in the situation on or before Saturday, we will consider the withdrawal of all tramway men, motor drivers and carters from the streets for their protection."

British Evacuation of Erin Resumed Today

Dublin, Feb. 17 (By the Associated Press).—The British military evacuation of Ireland is expected to be resumed today or tomorrow, it was declared by Michael Collins, head of the provisional Irish government, on his return yesterday from London.

General Sir C. F. Nevil Macready, British military commander in Ireland, visited Collins in the afternoon and their conversation, it was assured, was in connection with the withdrawal of the troops.

Collins last night sent a lengthy telegram to the British colonial secretary declaring that the best help the provisional government could have in its present difficulties was for England faithfully to carry out the Anglo-Irish treaty in all its particulars.

Nationalist Papers Seized in Cork

Cork, Feb. 17 (By the Associated Press).—When the mail train from Dublin arrived here today a party of armed men seized all the copies of the Irish Nationalist newspapers, and drove off in automobiles.

The copies of the Unionist Irish Times and the English newspapers were not touched.

TO DECIDE DIPOSITION OF GERMAN CABLES

Washington, Feb. 17.—An international conference to consider the allocation of former German cables in the Atlantic will be called in Washington next week, Acting Secretary Fletcher announced today. Representatives of France, England, Italy, Japan and the United States will be asked to meet and determine the disposition of the three cable lines taken over under the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles.

STRIKE PARLEY IN PROVIDENCE IS BIG STEP

Representatives of Both Sides to Present Their Cases Before Arbitration Board

The first real step toward settlement of the big New England textile strike which has resulted in the closing of forty plants and idleness for 45,000 workers, will be taken in Providence tomorrow when representatives of each side will place their case before the State Board of Mediation.

While any decision of the board only involves the 17,000 Rhode Island strikers, it is believed that any action taken will lead to a speedier settlement of wage difficulties throughout New England.

Organization of the conciliation board, formed after an urgent plea for a settlement by Governor San Souci, was completed with the selection of Judge Jerome J. Hahn of Superior Court as fifth member and chairman.

Judge Hahn, who has had a part in settling several strikes, got busy at once and the important joint conference tomorrow is the result of his activities.

Throughout the Pawtuxet and Blackstone Valleys picketing of plants where wage reductions resulted in walkouts continues. Girls and women are braving the biting winds and snow to get recruits to their cause of protest.

Employers to Give Side in Manchester

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 17.—William T. Straw, agent for the Amoskeag Mills, will present the manufacturers' side of the wage controversy before the Manchester Ministerial Association next week.

This announcement was made following a meeting of the association at which the side of the strikers was presented by James Starr, vice-president of the United Textile Workers of America.

Meanwhile the strikers are continuing their preparations for a long fight. Plans have been completed for a city-wide tag day tomorrow when funds will be solicited to aid women and children affected by the walkout.

R. I. Strike-Breakers Also Join Walkout

Pawtucket, Feb. 17.—Strike-breakers employed as truck drivers at the plant of the Jenckes Spinning Company struck when their wages were reduced from $35 to $21 per week, according to information emanating from labor headquarters. It was stated that later an agreement was made with the drivers which influenced them to return to work.

3,500 Affected by Lawrence Shutdown

Lawrence, Feb. 17.—With the exception of a few small departments the entire plant of the Arlington mills has been closed until Thursday of next week. Lack of orders is given by mill officials as the reason. About 3,500 are affected.

ROXBURY MAN HELD IN TILTON, N. H., CASE

Ernest L. Harvey of Pevear street, Roxbury, fined a week ago by Judge Ahern in Roxbury Court upon conviction on a charge of harboring a truant, appeared in court today and withdrew his appeal. He was immediately arrested by headquarters officers as a fugitive from justice on a warrant from Tilton, N. H., where he is wanted to answer a charge in connection with a check.

RULES WIDOW SHOULD GET $4,600 INSURANCE

Mrs. Celia Levine of Westminster terrace, Roxbury, has been found by Judge Anderson in Federal Court to be entitled to her late husband's insurance policy for $4,600, the decision coming as a result of a suit filed by the New York Life Insurance Company. Mrs. Levine was the original beneficiary, but some months prior to Levine's death he assigned the policy to his niece, Mrs. Lizzie Schneider of Brooklyn.

JILTED SUITOR KILLS WOMAN AND CHILD

Newport, R. I., Feb. 17.—"I wanted to make up with her, but she pushed me away, so I shot her and her boy dead and then I tried to kill myself."

This is the story of Alfred Koschny, thirty years old, made to the police following his arrest at his home, No. 101 John street, with a bullet wound on his forehead, and the finding of the bodies of Mrs. Margaret (Sullivan) Pike, a twenty-two-year-old divorcee, and her son, Robert, five years old, on the floor of the bedroom of their apartment in the Mayer block, Spring street.

Koschny was arraigned today on two charges of murder and remanded to jail without bail to await Grand Jury action.

Neighbors of Mrs. Pike said that she was a schoolgirl sweetheart of Koschny and that since her divorce here, last October, he had been courting her again.

There was a quarrel and the double murder and attempted suicide resulted, according to the police.

Occupants of the Mayer block said they heard several shots, the thud of a falling body, and the scream of a child but did nothing.

Sometime later a call came to the police from Koschny's home for an ambulance. Police who accompanied the ambulance found Koschny, blood flowing from a bad wound on his forehead and a revolver on the table beside him.

FOUND WOUNDED.

On the way to the hospital Koschny confessed to Police Sergeant Patrick Sweeney.

While Koschny was being treated at the hospital and was taken to jail, other police officers went to Mrs. Pike's apartment.

A gruesome sight met their eyes when they entered the lighted bedroom. The young woman, with bullet wounds in her head and neck, was lying on the floor with her head under her dresser. She was dead.

The lifeless body of her boy lay on the floor with his head against a radiator. The child had been shot behind the left ear.

Mrs. Pike was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Sullivan of Simmons street. Her divorced husband is Walter Pike, now working in Brockton, Mass.

Tourists Fleeced of $1,500,000 in Florida

By Universal Service

Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 17.—Confidence men have fleeced tourists to Flordia resorts out of $1,500,000 this season.

Losses of this amount have been admitted by victims at hearings following the arrest of nineteen men here as bunco steerers and wire tappers.

Morris Helle of Newark, N. J., is reported to have been the largest loser, reporting to the police that he had been swindled out of $75,000, his life savings.

PAULINE LORD IS SUED BY WIFE OF PLAYER

suit, referring all questions to her attorney, Arthur F. Driscoll, who described the case "as a smoke screen" arising out of the marital difficulties of the Harris family.

In her complaint Mrs. Harris said that Miss Lord "wickedly and wilfully undertook to alienate" the affections of Harris, and "caused him to forsake" his wife and daughter.

Included in the papers in the $50,000 suit Mrs. Harris filed a number of letters alleged to have been written by Miss Lord to Harris at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, in September, 1920. One of the letters reads in part:

"Darling, I miss you so much, oh, so much. I love you so much, oh, so much. Do you think I shall ever get used to being without you?"

In the hearing of Mrs. Roche's suit, Miss Lord testified that she receives $500 a week salary, but that she had no property and no money. She was ordered to pay $50 a week on the Roche judgment.

Mrs. Harris says one letter written by Miss Lord said:

"It's a wise dame who knows her man. So you see I'm in a quandary. If I don't write, I get awful wires, and if I do, I have to be so derned careful what I say, so I've concluded to make 'em short and say little."

COLLEGE HEAD, CALLED ATHEIST, ATTACKS BRYAN

By Associated Press.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 17.—President E. A. Birge of the University of Wisconsin, today replied to assertions of William J. Bryan, made here a year ago and repeated recently, that he is an "atheist" and an unfit teacher for students because of his acceptance of modern science, including the theory of evolution. In a letter to the Rev. E. S. Worcester, Mr. Birge reassetred expressions made to Mr. Bryan following his speech to students here declaring that he had "never found it necessary to justify religion to science or excuse science to religion.

"I have accepted both as equally divine revelations and both as equally wrought into the constitution of the world," President Birge said.

POINTS TO THE PAST.

"Mr. Bryan seemed to dislike especially my objecting to his uniting religion to a 'discredited scientific hypothesis.' I think that the history of the church gives good ground for my objection. In the fifteenth century people were told that the doctrine of a round world was 'atheistic' and a century or so later the Copernian astronomer was called 'atheistic.'

"Did such teachings help religion in the past and is there any good reason to think that Mr. Bryan will succeed where his predecessors have failed dismally during four centuries?

"Another thing that seems to trouble Mr. Bryan is the fact that I told him that his teachers were 'atheistic' rather than the teachings of evolution. I had a real meaning and purpose in thus calling the attention of Mr. Bryan definitely and sharply to the religious harm that may come from his teachings.

THE WRONG PATH.

"Now if St. Paul was right, those who urge us rather to look for God's creative activity in the remote past do err. They are turning the seeker for God from the right track and putting him on one that is only too likely to lead him away from God.

"The harmful effect of such teachings was clearly seen in many of those who used to oppose evolution. They talked as men who had never found God, who is daily and hourly giving to all of us life and breath and all things."

New York City Has Year's Low Record

New York, Feb. 17.—Thermometers registered an unofficial low record for the year today. The cold that gripped the city sent the mercury down to four degrees above zero. It drove hundreds to police stations, the Municipal Lodging House and the Salvation Army Barracks.

45 Below Zero at Rainbow Lake

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Feb. 17.—The St. Lawrence River is frozen from bank to bank for the first time in several seasons. Ice breaking tugs are keeping the Car Ferry Channel open between this city and Prescott, Ont.

FROZEN BODY OF GIRL FOUND IN SNOW

Throat Bears Finger Prints and Auto Tracks Are Traced Nearby

By Associated Press

Camden, N. J., Feb. 17.—The frozen body of a young woman bearing the imprint of fingers on the throat was found today twenty feet from the driveway that leads from the Kaighn avenue bridge over Cooper Creek to Forest Hill Park, this city.

Tracks of an automobile and the footprints of two men were discernible in the hard-crusted snow leading from the spot where the body was found to the driveway.

The body was found by a lamp trimmer. The woman was about thirty years old and good looking. The body was dressed in "second mourning" costume.

There was no evidence of a sturggle, leading the police to believe the woman was either dead or unconscious when laid in the snow.

There was no evidence of a struggle, on the throat. The body must have been exposed to the cold for many hours, in the opinion of Coroner Holl of Camden County.

The driveway beyond the Kaighn avenue bridge was deserted last night, and no one has been found who saw or heard an automobile in that vicinity.

2 BARGES GROUNDED AT CAPE COD CANAL

Sandwich, Feb. 17.—A barge was grounded near each entrance to the Cape Cod Canal today. The barge Secony 6 struck the northern end of the breakwater, off the eastern entrance, during the night and was still stranded there today, but in no apparent danger. The barge Greenwood was ashore at Hunnewell's Point, in Buzzards Bay, just below the western entrance.

DISABLED VETS ASK HARDING FOR PENSIONS

President Promises to Urge Upon Congress Aid for Totally Helpless Men

By Universal Service.

Washington, Feb. 17.—Totally disabled veterans of the World War may be retired on permanent pensions as the result of a memorial submitted to President Harding.

A committee of totally disabled men from Walter Reed Hospital conferred with the President and left a petition asking for a change in the present law dealing with this class of veterans.

The petition requested that the President use his influence to secure enactment of a bill providing that when a service man shall be adjudged totally and permanently disabled; to have been in that condition for a period of twelve months, and to be unable to engage in any gainful occupation, he shall get full and permanent benefits.

The President was told that owing to a ruling of the Comptroller-General, no service man, however crippled, could be adjudged totally disabled. In other words, a World War veteran can only be classed as totally disabled when he is dead. As long as he is alive, he must continue to take vocational training to rehabilitate him physically, even if he is completely crippled, Mr. Harding was informed.

BANKER O'NEIL FAVORS BONUS AND SALES TAX

Regards Proposed Levy as Simplest Way of Raising Necessary Revenue

Joseph H. O'Neil, president of the Federal Trust Company, former Congressman, and ranked as one of Boston's leading bank experts, came out today squarely in favor of the campaign being waged by the Boston American and other Hearst papers for the soldiers' bonus and a sales tax.

He said:

"I am for both a bonus for the soldiers and a sales tax. The country has failed in its duty toward the soldiers up to the present time, and the adjusted compensation bill should be passed just as soon as possible.

"I do not understand why the farmers oppose the sales tax any more than I see why they oppose daylight saving. In both cases I believe their opposition arises from a misunderstanding.

"In the first place the sales tax will not rest any more heavily on the poor man than does the present tax, and insofar as the sales tax stimulates the business which the present tax hinders the sales tax will rest less heavily.

"The sales tax is the simplest tax which is at the same time adequate to raise the necessary revenue. Surtaxes, super-taxes, and the other thirty-seven varieties of taxes are all so complicated that even experts grope about in a fog when they attempt to figure it.

"The sales tax is the most equitable tax of any that has been proposed, and it is the one that will be felt least by everybody. The poor, who buy little will pay less of a tax than the wealthy, who buy much. Nothing will increase in cost under the sales tax, because under any system of taxation it is the consumer who pays and the sales tax will merely supplant the former tax."

Among the prominent merchants of the city who favor the bonus and the sales tax as boosted by the Boston American, are Harry Dutton, president of Houghton & Dutton Company, and William M. Weller of Jason Weiler & Sons.

PETITION TO CONGRESS

For Action on Soldiers' Bonus With Sales Tax to Pay It

WE respectfully petition Congress to pass the soldiers' bonus act without further delay and also to levy a sales tax to obtain the money to pay the bonus, for the following reasons:

FIRST: Public opinion throughout the United States is undeniably in favor of the soldiers' bonus as shown by the decisive majority in every State in which a popular referendum has been taken: In Maine by 3 to 1; New Jersey by 3½ to 1; New York nearly 2 to 1; Rhode Island 8 to 1; Wisconsin 3 to 1; Oregon 2 to 1; Washington 2½ to 1, and so on.

SECOND: We believe that Congress if permitted to vote on the soldiers' bonus bill will favor it with even greater unanimity, regardless of party, than the popular majority by which the people in twenty-two States have already approved it; we believe that the soldiers' bonus cannot and ought not to be defeated and that the longer it is postponed, the greater the injustice.

THIRD: We believe the new tax scheme proposed by the Ways and Means Committee is only a little less objectionable than Secretary Mellon's proposal for three cent postage and for a new three-cents-a-gallon tax on gasoline. Proponents of such taxes oppose any soldiers' bonus whatever and hope by linking it with such new destructive and unpopular taxes to kill the proposition altogether.

FOURTH: If the soldiers' bonus is not only right, but inevitable, and if the United States is not to lag behind England, France, Italy, Canada and Australia, which have already paid liberal soldiers' bonuses, then our payment is already long overdue, not as a debt (for our debt to the soldiers can never be paid), but as a just tribute to the valor and the sacrifice of the men who won the war.

FIFTH: The only question that remains is: By what system of taxation shall the money be raised? Not by bond issues, because it is against the traditional policy of the United States to increase debt in time of peace. Not by any irritating, unreasonable or destructive tax on individuals, business or industry, because we already have too many such taxes. A small general sales tax will raise more than enough to pay the soldiers' bonus. It will bear heavily on no one. If the experience of Canada and our own Philippine Islands, where the sales tax is in operation, is repeated, the system will meet with such favor that it will become one of the approved methods of raising necessary revenue after the soldiers' bonus has been paid

HOLYOKE MAYOR FAVORS BONUS FOR VETERANS

Chamber of Commerce Expected to Renew Stand in Support of Compensation Bill

By CHARLES O. POWER.

Holyoke, Feb. 17.—Among the Massachusetts veterans of the World War Holyoke has gained the reputation of being the city that appreciates. This unique distinction was won in this way. The Chamber of Commerce of the paper city had the temerity to refuse to obey orders of the United States Chamber of Commerce on the bonus or adjusted compensation question.

It happened about a year ago. The officials of the national organization had made up their minds that they would kill the bill then pending in Congress. To the State and local bodies affiliated orders were issued to get busy and exert their influence against the bill. Adroitly planned questionnaires, to be sent to members accompanied the orders. The purpose was to show a strong volume of opposition to the bonus in the business world as expressed on a so-called referendum.

The Holyoke Chamber not only refused to swallow the bait, but, on the contrary, hooked up with the veterans by passing resolutions indorsing the American Legion's five-fold adjusted compensation plan, the same bill that is now before Congress and supported by all of the veteran organizations of the country.

SETTLE QUESTION TONIGHT.

Tonight will settle the question for the Holyoke Chamber. The committee having the matter in charge will meet to consider the latest appeal from the United States Chamber. It has been decided not to have a general referendum, but to follow the advice of a select committee appointed to give the questions involved special study.

There are some former service men upon the committee and they are primed with strong arguments. Dr. Edward J. Hussey, commander of the Holyoke post of the Legion, will attend the committee meeting. He says he will be very much surprised if the Chamber reverses its attitude on the bill, notwithstanding that strong pressure has been brought to bear.

Mayor John F. Cronin strongly indorses the adjusted compensation bill. In his opinion a general sales tax would be the ideal way to meet the financial requirements of the proposed legislation.

FAVORS SALES TAX.

"Almost everybody indorses the principle of a bonus or adjusted compensation for the men who served their country so gallantly in the World War," said Mayor Cronin to the Boston American representative. "Some may quibble about it but, when we get right down to the justice of it, there cannot be two minds about it. Of course we cannot pay the soldiers for their patriotism. That is out of the question and not to be considered. But we can give more material recognition of their services than has been given. All the veteran organizations say it should be given, and let's take them at their word. The boys took us on word and the government's word for a great deal.

"The ideal way to raise the money, in my opinion, is through a general sales tax. I spent a few days in Canada a short time ago and while there, went into the scheme of that tax rather thoroughly. It has much to commend it as a taxation plan that is equitable and free from features that irritate the tax payer.

"I talked with some of the representative business men and prominent officials of Canada and from what they said it appears to be about as popular as any effective method of taxation can be. So, in the absence of any better suggestion I would favor a general sales tax to meet the requirements of the adjusted compensation measure."

French Court Deprives Princess of Wealth and Nationality

Paris, Feb. 17.—Princess Charles Rodolphe of Croy, formerly Nancy Leichman, at one time considered one of the richest women in Europe, is denationalized and condemned to poverty as the result of a decision by the Court Doust.

The decision gives the French government ownership of her Croy chateau in northern France, which was sequestered during the war. The chateau was taken over by the government because the Princess' husband and her husband's brother fought in the Germany army.

In her appeal to have the sequestration set aside, the Princess declared that her husband was in Germany at the time war was declared and was forced into the army under penalty of death.

STAGE MORALS DEFENDED BY COCHRAN

London Impresario Declares Least Immoral Community in the World

By Universal Service.

London, Feb. 17.—Charles B. Cochran, London's leading impresario, supports William A. Brady's defence of stage morals which featured newspaper cables from New York. In an exclusive statement to Universal Service Mr. Cochran said:

"After thirty-two years' experience in various phases of theatrical work, I do not hesitate to say that persons connected with the stage make up the least immoral community in the world. Because there necessarily is so much mixing of the sexes on the stage, the public makes the mistake of assuming that the artists lead loose lives.

"The stage also gets a bad name because, when a prominent actor or actress becomes involved in a scandal, the newspapers give tremendous publicity to the case, and the whole profession is immediately branded.

"I believe with Mr. Brady that the past record of churches is worse than that of the theatres, but misdeeds of the clergy and ministers are apt to be clouked with secrecy, especially in small towns and villages.

ORDERED TO HIRE ONLY UNION OPERATIVES

Court Grants Injunction Against C. V. Watson Shoe Co. of Haverhill

In the Supreme Court today Judge Charles F. Jenney issued an injunction restraining the C. V. Watson Company of Haverhill from employing any operators in its Lowell factory who do not belong to the Boot and Shoe Workers' Protective Union.

The injunction is to stand until the company's contract with the Haverhill branch of the union expires, April 15, 1923.

Officials of the Haverhill union, who petitioned for the injunction, testified that the Watson Company was attempting to violate a contract with the union, in which the company agreed to employ only union men and women, when such were available.

There is no lack of union operatives at present, they said, and the company is moving its factory from Haverhill to Lowell. This move, the plaintiffs allege, is made in order to run the factory on an open shop basis, and in violation of the agreement.

NOTED WOMAN EDUCATOR IN ROMANCE

Marion Churchill to Wed William A. Muller, Boston Insurance Man

Miss Marion Churchill of Arlington, president of the Women's Educational Industrial Union, whose engagement to William A. Muller, well known Boston insurance man, has just been announced, is to retire from active service in connection with the union and other organizations with which she has long been associated.

This information came with the announcement today by Mr. Muller that the wedding is to take place some time in April. Just when Miss Churchill will give up her active work in connection with the various organizations has not been definitely decided, but according to Mr. Muller, it will be soon.

The coming marriage of Miss Churchill and Mr. Muller brings to light a friendship of long standing between Miss Churchill and Mr. Muller's first wife, who died about a year ago. For many years she and Miss Churchill were the closest friends and Miss Churchill made several trips to Europe with Mr. and Mrs. Muller in the years just preceding the death of Mrs. Muller.

Both the Muller family and Miss Churchill lived in Arlington, and Mrs. Muller took a great interest in Miss Churchill from her early girlhood.

Miss Churchill was graduated from Radcliffe and for several years taught in the Newton and Brookline schools. She then went to Colorado where for three years she was Dean of the women at Colorado College. On her return to the East she became interested in the Women's Educational Industrial Union and finally was made president of that organization.

She was the only woman to be appointed to the legislative commission formed for the purpose of reducing and combining the various departments of State in the Commonwealth. She is a member of the Simmons College Corporation, an associate of Radcliffe College, and is president of the Radcliffe College Alumnae Association.

Among the smart set of Arlington Miss Churchill is well known as a member of the "Rough Riders Organization," a group of Arlington horseback riders. She is an excellent horsewoman and a great lover of outdoor sports.

Mr. Muller is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1891.

WARNS BOSTON OF DANGER IN COAL STRIKE

Chamber Committee aSys Supply of Coal May Be Seriously Curtailed

Warning to the public of the danger to the country of the coal strike threatened for April 1, was issued today by the Bureau of Commercial and Industrial Affairs of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Howard Coonley, chairman of the committee of commercial and industrial affairs, declared that there was a strong probability that the strike of the hard and soft coal miners would seriously curtail the nation's supply of fuel.

Existing wage agreements expire at the same time in the bituminous and anthracite fields, adding to the danger.

Suspension of anthracite mining on April 1 is virtually assured following the action taken by the miners in convention at Shamokin, Pa., recently.

A threat was issued at the convention of the United Mine Workers held in Indianapolis to the effect that if "no agreement is reached by April 1 we declare in favor of a general suspension of mining operations, such action being subject to a referendum vote of the membership of the United Mine Workers of America."

If the miners should go on strike more than half a million workers will be directly involved.

The unions' demands include refusal to accept any wage cut, adjustment of inequitable differentials, entailing increase in pay for some miners of twenty per cent, abolition of automatic penalty clause for fining miners, limitation of the eight-hour day to the time of entry and exit from the mine, pay and a half for overtime, double pay for Sunday and holiday work, and weekly instead of bi-weekly or monthly pay.

MRS. ANNA E. HUGHES

Mrs. Anna E. Hughes, 22 West Elm St., Chicago, an artist who enjoys a wide and enviable reputation for skill in china painting, in relating the facts of her remarkable experience with Tanlac, says:

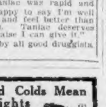

"I haven't enjoyed such good health or felt so well in every way in years as I do now. Before I took Tanlac I was run down that half an hour at my work would tire me completely out and I was actually so nervous and weak that at times the brush would fall from my hands and I would have to quit work for the rest of the day. Every night I would lie awake for hours, miserable and nervous.

"My improvement after the first few doses of Tanlac was rapid and constant. I'm happy to say I'm well and strong now and feel better than in twenty years. Tanlac deserves every word of praise I can give it."

PAVING WAY FOR MUNICIPAL LIGHT PLANT

Hill Asks for Law Permitting City to Build or Take Edison Company

Attorney Arthur D. Hill, Boston's corporation counsel, appeared today before the legislative committee on power and light and asked for a simplification of the laws whereby the city can build its own electric light plant or take over the Edison Company.

Mr. Hill said he represented Mayor Curley and that while neither he nor the Mayor were for or against a municipal lighting plant, both were of the opinion that the laws should be simplified in case the people desired to have one.

"The Edison Company hearings," said Mr. Hill, "will establish three things. First, the real value of the Edison Company property; second, whether the Edison Company is being managed properly or improperly, and third, what justification there is for the present lighting rates.

"After these three things have been determined I rely on the horse sense of the people to vote properly on the question of whether they desire a municipal lighting plant.

TO GIVE THEM CHANCE.

"I believe that existing statutes should be amended," said Mr. Hill, "in order that a city or town may acquire and operate a municipal gas or electric light plant without being forced to pay too much to the existing private plants.

"The question at issue is not whether or not a city should go into the lighting business. Mr. Curley has not reached a final decision relative to Boston. There is a difference of opinion on the part of the people.

"If a city has an intelligently managed and properly operated private lighting plant it can get good service."

Mr. Hill said he advised ex-Mayor Peters not to sign the resolution recently passed by the Boston City Council because of the provisions of existing law. "I am here today seeking an amendment to existing law because of my study," he added.

TO KNOW THE FACTS.

"There is pending before the public utilities commission a case brought by the city of Boston and the Boston American for a reduction of rates," said Mr. Hill. "I trust the case will be continued to the end as it will go far toward providing a basis for consideration of the question. Before we finish we shall know how the Edison Company is being managed and just what should be done. Under existing law it is practically impossible to take over a private lighting plant under reasonable terms.

"If the city of Boston decides on a municipal light plant it must take over the Edison plant if the officials of the corporation ask it. That is the law today.

"The city would be confronted with the problem of taking over a plant that serves thirty more cities and towns. In addition the law makes no proper provision against payment of more than the price the plant is worth. As there is no time limit in which the company would have to ask the city to take over its private plant the company might wait until the city had constructed a new plant and then ask the city to take it over."

"I would hesitate to say that the present law was adroitly framed to make it impossible to have municipal ownership of such utilities. It may be due to the fact that it was passed at a time when large monopolies were practically unknown.

"I believe that a general bill should be enacted giving cities permission to own and operate plants and sell to other communities if desired."

LODGE'S RECORD ATTACKED BY FITZGERALD

Former Mayor Lashes Republican Party for Its Treatment of Service Men

John F. Fitzgerald, speaking before the Rotary Club of Lynn, attacked Senator Lodge bitterly upon his personal record in Congress during the past year, and the Republican Party upon its treatment of soldiers and sailors who are suffering for the common necessities of life. He said:

"Senator Lodge boasted of having thrown more than 400,000 government employes out of work, in the interest of government economy. He then called together an employment conference which hypocritically advised municipal and State governments to carry on all possible public improvement work, to alleviate the misery of the unemployed.

"Senator Lodge boasted of what the Republican administration has done, and intends to do for the soldiers. As a matter of fact Senator Lodge and his Republican colleagues have done nothing whatsoever for the ex-service men, not even the disabled ones.

"The men are promised a bonus one day and denied it the next, while thousands of them walk the streets without food, clothing or shelter. The administration's treatment of the sick, battered, helpless boys whose lives were wrecked in the service is a national disgrace.

"The State of Massachusetts recently had two or three hundred jobs to give to ex-service men—and what happened? Thousands of destitute men stormed the State House, seeking work. Not one in ten had sufficient clothing. Not one in twenty was properly nourished.

"The percentage of them who were prey to tuberculosis and other wasting diseases—due largely to exposure and undernourishment—was appalling.

"And yet Mr. Lodge boasts of what rigid economies he and his party have been able to effect.

"What has Senator Lodge done for our bankrupt railways, our declining industries, our decaying harbors?

"He boasts that Liberty Bonds are going up. They were forced down by the manipulation of the speculators, who work hand in glove with the administration Mr. Lodge boasts of. The prices were kept down until our people had to sell the bonds into which they had put the savings of years.

"Then the price was allowed to take its natural course, which was upward, and which would have allowed a gain upward but for the manipulation of the market by powerful interests."

HOUSEWORK A SKILLED JOB, SAYS LADY ASTOR

London, Feb. 17.—Domestic service is a skilled job and the opposite of a degrading occupation, declared Lady Astor, M. P., presiding at a conference of unemployment among women. "When I listen to the anti-women members in the House of Commons," she added, "I rather long to go to them as a domestic. It would be such a wonderful chance of what the soldiers call 'learning 'em.'"

Harding Indicates He Will Wait Until Hughes Returns From Bermuda

By the Associated Press.

Washington, Feb. 17.—Delay by President Harding in responding to the Hitchcock resolution until Secretary Hughes returns about March 1 from his trip to Bermuda, was indicated today after Senator Lodge, one of the American arms conference delegates, had conferred with the President.

The Hitchcock resolution, adopted by the Senate, calls on the President for complete information on the negotiations leading up to conclusion of the four-power Pacific treaty.

MALDEN BOY IS NEAR DEATH BY FALL ON STAKE

Son of Director Stewartson of "The O'Brien Girl" Is Hurt While Skiing

Paul Stewartson, fourteen-year-old son of Jerome H. Stewartson, director of the musical comedy "The O'Brien Girl," was probably fatally hurt today when he fell on a pointed stake while skiing near his home, No. 803 Main street, Malden.

The boy had been skiing with several chums, and tried to take a jump. Losing his footing as he "took off," he fell, striking the sharp point of a shrub that had been broken off close to the ground.

He was lacerated badly, and at the Malden Hospital, where he was taken immediately, it was said he had severe internal injuries and probably could not live.

The boy's father, who is in New York, and his mother in Concord, N. H., have been summoned by telegram.

Yeast Vitamine Tablets should be used in connection with organic Nuxated Iron. Without organic iron, both food and Vitamines are absolutely useless, as your body cannot change inert, lifeless food into living cells and tissue unless you have plenty of organic iron in your blood. Organic iron takes up oxygen from your lungs. This oxygenated organic iron unites with your digested food as it is absorbed into your blood just as fire unites with coal or wood, and by so doing it creates tremendous power and energy. Without organic iron in your blood your food merely passes thru your body without doing you any good.

MEN WORK TOO FAST; DRIVEN TO JAZZ

Dr. Myerson Declares Speed of Business World Leads Employes to Revels

Business men and manufacturers can blame themselves for jazz. It is the result of standardized production.

Dr. Abraham Myerson, consultant neurologist of the Boston Psychopathic Hospital, says so.

In an address on "Mental Hygiene" today he told a hall crowded with women attending the meeting of the Boston City Federation at No. 585 Boylston street, that the standardized humdrum of business and manufacture was driving workers crazy.

'Manufacturers," he said, "have opaque windows so their employes cannot have their attention diverted from their work. They have sped up efficiency until workers are little more than animals. Result. After-hour revels. Jazz, liquor and worse.

"Excitement nowadays is an obsession with everybody. Business man works and becomes the tired business man when his work is done. What does he crave then? Home, sweet home, and Friend Wife? No, sir. He wants a show.

"What about his wife? Monotony of housework. Same old grind over and over. She craves diversion. Result—jazz, the triangle and then divorce court.

"The world," he continued, "is so saturated with speed just now a grown-up can learn from a five-year-old."

At the afternoon meeting of the federation Mrs. William Healy, president, expected to introduce Mayor Curley.

As vice-president of the Boston League of Women Voetrs Mrs. Healy campaigned against the Mayor. It was said that after presenting him at the meeting today she would withdraw. This Mrs. Healy denied.

PIUS XI. SLEEPS IN VATICAN'S THRONE ROOM

Work on Private Apartment, Which Is Being Redecorated, Not Completed

Rome, Feb. 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—Pius XI. has not yet settled down to the normal life of a Supreme Pontiff, chiefly because the private apartment occupied by the late Benedict XV. is not ready to receive him.

A crowd of workmen are redecorating the apartment, changing the hangings and carpets and rearranging the furniture.

Meanwhile the Pope continues to sleep in what is called the "Little throne room." It was in this chamber that Pope Leo XIII. died.

Compared with the other rooms in the Vatican it is considered small, although it measures about twenty by twenty feet and the ceiling is fifteen feet high.

As it adjourns the large Papal library, where Pius X. and Benedict XV. received visitors, the chamber was transformed into a small throne room. A throne was placed opposite the window and on the floor was a magnificent carpet presented by Alfonzo XII., King of Spain, to Pope Leo, having in its centre the coat of arms of the Spanish sovereign.

The throne has been removed, being replaced by the small iron bed in which Pius sleeps. This is sheltered by a screen, and in another part of the room is a large desk at which the Pope works.

one of the chief causes of constipation?

The quotation is taken from an important paper on the treatment of constipation by a well-known physician

DID it ever occur to you that the cathartic you take to relieve constipation, is the cause of your trouble?

Yet when a number of doctors were discussing this almost universal complaint one of them said: "Probably one of the most frequent causes of constipation is the indiscriminate use of cathartics." For years physicians have tried to persuade people to give up laxatives and to eat corrective foods instead.

It is now known that Fleischmann's Yeast is a food which makes the use of cathartics unnecessary. Because of its freshness it helps the intestines eliminate waste matter.

People who are adding Fleischmann's Yeast to their daily diet find that their body functions are kept normal and regular. Eat 2 or 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast before or between meals every day. Place a standing order with your grocer. He will deliver Fleischmann's Yeast fresh daily.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Elite Interested in Concert to Aid German Children

By BETTY ALDEN.

THE concert which Madame Elena Gerhardt, the lyric soprano, is giving in Jordan Hall this evening in aid of the Massachusetts quota of the $3,000,000 campaign for the German Child Feeding Distribution will be the magnet to draw the smart set of Boston. Madame Gerhardt will be assisted by Raymond Robinson, organist of the Central Church.

The distribution of this fund in Germany is under the direction of the American Friends' Service (Quaker). The concert is being given under the patronage of Governor Cox, Lieutenant-Governor Alvan T. Fuller, and Senators Henry Cabot Lodge and David I. Walsh.

President Harding is taking great interest in this undertaking and has written the campaign secretary, saying:

"I am impressed that the time has come when the old asperities of the war period may properly be forgotten in the face of such humanitarian efforts. The real ideal of human brotherhood will best and soonest be realized through the encouragement of such works as this."

The concert will include passages from the works of Handel, Brahms, Schubert and Strauss.

It was quite a feather in the cap of Boston to have the sovereign ruler of the world of dogdom for 1922 a local product. Boxwood Barkentine, owned by the Frederick C. Hoods, of Warren street, Brookline, was proclaimed the "best dog" of the 1,805 entries in the forty-sixth annual show of the Westminster Kennel Club, held at Madison Square Garden the early part of the week.

Though this Airedale is but a year and a half old, he has done his owners proud in the matter of prizes. He is little short of insatiable where blue ribbons are concerned. Starting with the almost unnoticed honor of victory in the novice class for Airedales, Boxwood Barkentine moved forward to take the blue ribbon for winners, dogs, in that variety.

Forging further, he won "best of breed," but was still unsatisfied. When the call sounded for the James Mortimer Memorial trophy for the best American bred dog in the show, out he trotted and walked away with the honors from a brilliant array of winners in other classes.

New York society is working hard to try to outdo the efforts of the Boston girls as the working staff of a large metropolitan hotel. The experiment of running the Copley-Plaza Hotel for a day last Fall was so successful that New York is planning to take over the Biltmore next Monday. All proceeds for the day will be given to the Society for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis. Miss Ruth Vanderbilt Twombly, daughter of Mrs. Hamilton McK. Twombly, is in charge of the arrangements.

There is an amusing bit of rivalry between two of the leaders of departments, Mrs. Henry Hamleston Rogers and Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson. The former is chairman of the committee which will stage the fashion pageant, "A Day With a Debutante," and the latter will have charge of the numerous flower booths scattered about the hotel. Each, it seems, is determined to have the most attractive girls in New York society on her staff, and they are in a constant state of warfare over who has promised who to do what.

"A Day With a Debutante" is in the form of a play and has been written by George S. Campbell, author of that entertaining satire on the recent South Sea literature that has flooded our book markets, "The Cruise of the Kawa." Mrs. Chapin, known professionally as Margaret Severn, the dancer, will have a prominent role in the entertainment, while Miss Joanne Eagels will be the star of the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Boardman, of No. 73 Marlboro street, have arrived in Palm Beach, where they have taken a cottage for a few weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Amory, also of this city, will go South early next week and will probably stay with Mrs. Amory's mother, Mrs. Charles A. Munn, who has one of The Breakers cottages.

Both the Boardmans and the Amorys will be on the committee of Mrs. Gurnee Munn as judges of the bathing costumes in the bathing suit fashion review to take place next week. Motion pictures showing the affair as well as giving views of Palm Beach as a Winter resort will be taken.

Others to assist Mrs Munn as judges will be Mr. and Mrs. John C. King, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Bingham, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Leonard Repogle.

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

THE Prince and Princess Boncompagni, who have been visiting in Boston during the past week, have returned to New York and are staying at the Ritz-Carlton. They plan to sail for Europe on Saturday.

One of those who has already planned to be a member of the smart Bar Harbor colony next season is Mrs. John Innes Kane. Mrs. Kane is leaving for Europe next month, where she will stay until July. After that she will go to the Maine resort.

Boston society is showing great interest in the news of the showing of the famous "Blue Boy," by Gainsborough, at the Duveen Galleries in New York. The purchase and importation of this painting by Henry E. Huntington has caused more than a little comment, both in this country and in England from which it came. Mr. Huntington paid $640,000 for it. A special entrance fee of $2 will be charged at the Duveen Galleries. The proceeds will go to the Fifth Avenue Hospital fund. A number of Bostonians who are planning to be in New York during the next few weeks intend to see the picture.

Mr. and Mrs. George von L. Meyer and Mrs. Alfred Codman of Boston were among the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Clarence Jones at a dinner dance given at their home, Yalta Villa, on Sunset avenue, Palm Beach, on Wednesday.

MANY RESPOND TO APPEAL FOR CHILD CRIPPLE

Generosity of Boston American Readers Brings Happiness Into Desolate Home

The strange impulse that moves human hearts to do whatever is possible to make little children happy has operated to bring gladness to the home where little Clarence Nyman has lain a helpless invalid for two long years.

Clarence, who has been confined to his bed for two years, lives with his mother and brothers and sisters in a little home at No. 416 Franklin street, Cambridge. The crib in which he was confined was too small, and on the verge of falling apart from age.

GENEROUS RESPONSE.

The Boston American printed a picture of the little chap in the pitiable wreck of a bed that he never leaves. And the response of its readers was swift and generous. Today, as a result, the little home is a place of happiness.

From Thomas R. Dish, proprietor of the New American House at Dover, N. H., came a check for $25. From Charles M. Connor of Lake Shore road, Lynn, came $5 for the poverty-stricken family. And, best of all, a gift of $10 and a brand new crib, to be delivered as soon as a special mattress can be made for it, are on the way from Harry Dutton.

Over in the squalid four rooms that little Clarence Nyman knows as home, there isn't much in the way of furnishings. The oil cloth on the floor is tattered and torn, the table legs are rheumatic and the chairs aren't what you could honestly call good.

CHILD IS HELPLESS.

From his neck to his knees Clarence is helpless. Some day the doctors say they'll cure his diseased spine and then he'll get out and play. So Clarence never paid much attention to such things as oil lamps and curtains that can't be rolled up. He never heard of steam heat, running hot water or a bath. He just knew he didn't have a Pa and that some day he'd be well. So he laid still and was brave.

But nature ordained that even crippled chaps must grow. So Clarence grew out of his baby-size crib.

It was early this week that his grandma asked the Boston American to get Clarence a crib. A crib that a regular feller could fit in. Now Clarence will have it and if Princess Mary has his smile on her wedding day she'll be a happy looking bride indeed.

Today Mrs. Agnes Nyman, Clarence's mother, lay in bed racked with a cold. Her's is a hard, but uncomplaining battle. She goes out by the day and does washing. And such work has its penalty in weather like this. Now she may lose several days' work and that is discouraging. For there's Harold and Albert and Helen besides poor little Clarence. And things cost so much. But she's brave.

SMILES BRIGHTEN HOME.

When Harold and Albert tumbled in from the Webster School stamping snow, her headache seemed to vanish when they first kissed her and then fondled Clarence. She even forgot the hurt of the groceries on the kitchen table that she hadn't been able to buy. They were brought in by the Salvation Army. She just looked out from her bed in the poverty-stamped bedroom and smiled as three happy youngsters popped their eyes.

But then what place could look mean when Clarence smiles?

And smile he does.

For he is going to get his new crib.

TEACHERS TO FILE NEW "EQUAL PAY" PETITION

Women teachers in Boston High Schools who are seeking "equal pay for equal service" are preparing a new petition which they are to present to the school committee at once and then co-operate with the public in acquainting the school committee with public sentiment in the matter.

They decided it advisable to withdraw Senate Bill 241 that aims to direct the Boston school board to pay women teachers and principals the same salaries as paid to men for equal service. It was also though best to withdraw another bill of duplicate effect, introduced by the State branch A. F. of L.

SOUTH DAKOTA WOMAN MAY BE GOVERNOR

Alice L. Daly, Emerson College Graduate, Candidate on "Modern" Platform

Alice Lorraine Daly, who was graduated from the Emerson College of Oratory here only a little more than six years ago, is today a candidate for election to the office of Governor of the State of South Dakota.

During the past year she has been connected with the National Non-Partisan League in that State, and she is carrying the standards of that party in her fight for election. In the past twelve months she has travelled some twenty thousand miles in the interests of the league and has made more than three hundred speeches.

HAD LITTLE OPPOSITION.

Miss Daly was nominated for governor by her party almost without opposition. She declared, in a statement which she issued immediately afterward, that she believes a woman would make a good governor because of woman's innate instinct for housekeeping. The job of running a State, she insists, does not greatly differ, in its essentials, from the job of running a home, and she can see no good reason why woman is not fitted for one as well as the other.

Recognizing the fact that the Non-Partisan League, as well as several other organizations with which she is affiliated, is known as more or less of a radical crowd, Miss Daly admits that "it is queer to be crucified before the campaign is over." The impending crucifixion does not seem to worry her greatly, however.

She asserts that the "governing class" of men is too much in the rut of the present economic system. These men, she says, do not seem to realize that "the system has become obsolete and can readily be replaced by a modern system that will function effectively."

STUDIED IN BOSTON.

Born and brought up in a small town near St. Paul, Minn., Miss Daly is a graduate of the University of Minnesota. Upon graduation she came to Boston where she completed in one year the regular three-year course offered by the Emerson College of Oratory, remaining to take a year of post-graduate work.

Then she returned to the West and became head of the department of public speaking of the South Dakota State Normal School. She remained there for five years, resigning to work for the league.

Always an ardent supporter of the suffrage cause, Miss Daly is a member of the board of directors of the State League of Women Voters, and is a prominent member of the Women's Peace Party.

HOST TO ROYALTY WILL BE "ERECTED"

Newport, R. I., Feb. 17.—Mrs. James J. Brown, most heavily insured woman in the United States, is at the exclusive Ritz in London. She is entertaining royalty. Here at the fashionable Club Cottage in Bellevue avenue a sheriff's "plaster" adorns the ornate front door. Mrs. Brown is said to be behind with her rent, which, it is said, ends a legal life on Tuesday. Society wintering South has wondered what would happen.

"Hamper?" echoed Deputy Sheriff Frank P. King today. "Why, she'll be arrested, her stuff tossed into the street."

ASKS 48-HOUR LAW IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 16.—Governor Brown, responding to a request from Mayor Waldron of Dover for a special session of the Legislature to act on a forty eight-hour law fro women and minors, said that the matter would be taken up at a meeting of the Governor and Council next Thursday. The Governor said: "It is safe to say that I will call such action, if any, in the premises as may seem to be appropriate and may be authorized by the constitution."

PAY DROPS, COST OF LIVING IS DOWN, TOO

Prices in Maine Cities Are Cut When Employes Wages Are Reduced 20 P. C.

Portland, Me., Feb. 17.—An effort is being made in several Maine cities to meet the 20 per cent. drop in the wages of textile employes by reducing the cost of products. Reports from Biddeford state that the prices of food and coal has been reduced, and in several cases rents have been dropped.

In Biddeford coal has been reduced 50 cents per ton, while one restaurant announced that the regular 50 cent dinner would be reduced to 40 cents. One of the leading bakeries reported a drop of 20 per cent. in all of its products. The Cabot Manufacturing Company, which employs 800, announced that the rents in all tenements occupied by mill operatives would be reduced 25 per cent.

In Lewiston the employes of the Hill Manufacturing Company living in houses owned by that corporation will benefit by a 20 per cent. cut in rents.

ALLEN IS LAUDED AT DINNER OF BANKERS

Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen was called a "fearless individual who is endeavoring to maintain the financial integrity of Massachusetts" at the annual banquet of the Boston Chapter, Inc., American Institute of Banking, at the Hotel Somerset. President George S. F. Bartlett made the laudatory comment, which was received with applause by many of Boston's bank presidents and directors.

HOPKINS FLAYS DICTATION BY BAPTISTS

Head of Dartmouth Refuses to Accede to Demand to Oust Professors

Hanover, N. H., Feb. 17.—President Ernest M. Hopkins of Dartmouth College, as "an individual," has replied to the leaders of the pre-millenialist group of the Baptist Church, who demanded the discharge of Dartmouth faculty professors holding certain beliefs in science and evolution, under a threat that they would force their departure.

PERNICIOUS INFLUENCES.

President Hopkins looks on the letter as an unwarranted attempt at sectarian interference with Dartmouth, which is undenominational, by its charter, granted more than 150 years ago, and refuses to heed its demands.

In his reply he says in part:

"The point of view of the letter seems to me to afford the most definite illustration that I have ever seen as to the pernicious influences of denominational control, or an attempted denominational influence in educational institutions. The minute that education becomes something besides a sincere and open-minded search for the truth it has become a pernicious and demoralizing influence rather than an aid to society and improver of civilization.

"It seems lamentable to me beyond measure that the Baptist, who have always professed to stand for freedom from church hierarchies and from influences which restrict the thinking of man, should now have a group rise within the denomination which wishes to put up the bars in so definite a way as your communication would seem to feel desirable and that is willing to abandon the spirit of Christ and the spirit of Christianity, that seeking and asking are two prerequisites of having the door of truth opened.

"CUP POISONED."

"If the spirit of propaganda, as against the spirit of honest search for the truth, which, in thinly veiled language, we would discard, is to be accepted as the legitimate agency of professedly Christian groups, there is no reason why we should dissent to the caustic reference of Wells in regard to the sad regret that the cup in which the great cause of Christianity has been proffered has been so often 'poisoned.'"

CHMIELINSKI AND McNARY AT COURT

Ask to Appear Before Grand Jury in Hanover Trust Probe

Former Congressman William S. McNary, treasurer, and Henry H. Chmielinski, president, of the closed Hanover Trust Company, appeared at the courthouse today and asked permission to testify before the special sitting of the Suffolk County Grand Jury which since Tuesday has been investigating the affairs of that institution.

McNary presented letters to Martin J. Ryan, foreman of the Grand Jury, asking that he and Chmielinski be allowed to testify. In a previous Grand Jury investigation of the Hanover Trust Company, in January, 1921, both testified before the Grand Jury.

Chmielinski was the first of the two called today.

Another witness waiting to testify was William G. Conway of the Conway Clothing Company.

Former Mayor John H. H. McNamee of Cambridge, president of the closed Prudential Trust Company, was a witness today. Others were Augustus Thornlike, former bank examiner; and D. B. Reynolds of the Tremont Building.

Chmielinski was testifying when the Grand Jury adjourned for the day. The inquiry will be resumed tomorrow, when it is planned to hear McNary.

CAMBRIDGE IN BATTLE OVER BRIDGE

Led by Mayor, Citizens Protest Against Relocating Cottage Farm Structure

Scores of citizens of Cambridge packed the room of the Committee of Metropolitan Affairs at the State House today to protest against the relocation of the Cottage Farm bridge across the Charles river.

The committee has under consideration a bill appropriating $1,000,000 for new bridges across the river.

A clause in the bill permits the Metropolitan District Commission to re-locate the Cottage Farms structure so that it will encroach upon the Magazine Street Playgrounds and bathing beach.

Mayor Quinn and Attorney Edmund A. White of Cambridge led the fight to save the playground, and they were supported by many prominent citizens.

NO SIGN OF 'FLU' EPIDEMIC, SAYS DR. CAREY

Many Cases Reported Only Severe Colds, Declares State Health Official

Two hundred and forty-five new cases of influenza and forty-two cases of pneumonia were reported to the State Department of Health today from various parts of the Commonwealth.

Dr. Bernard W. Carey, deputy commissioner of the department, said: "There has been no influenza epidemic in Massachusetts this Winter and there are no signs of one. Many cases reported as influenza have been merely severe colds.

"The number of lobar pneumonia cases is about normal."

Eighty-four new cases of influenza and two new deaths, were reported to the Boston Board of Health for the period ending at noon today.

This brings the total of Boston cases, since January 1, up to 879 with sixteen deaths.

Eleven new Boston cases of lobar pneumonia and three deaths were reported for the same period, making a total since the first of the year of 299 cases and 117 deaths.

KILLS ACCUSED MAN IN WIFE'S PRESENCE

(By Associated Press.)

Somerset, Ky., Feb. 17.—John F. Todd, farmer, who yesterday shot and killed A. H. Wilson, wealthy land owner, in an attorney's office here after Wilson had denounced as a "black lie" Todd's charges that he had been intimate with Mrs. Todd, today remained silent concerning the case.

The shooting occurred during the taking of depositions in divorce proceedings. Wilson had been named corespondent in Todd's counter claim to Mrs. Todd's suit, charging cruelty.

Mrs. Todd was in an anteroom where she could hear the testimony.

"Were you ever intimate with Mrs. Todd?" asked Judge William Catron, attorney for Mrs. Todd.

"Absolutely no. It—is black a one as ever was told."

Before there was time for anyone to interfere, Todd had whipped a pistol from his pocket and fired four shots at Wilson, seated only a few feet away.

Three shots took effect and Wilson died a few minutes later. Todd surrendered and was taken to jail. He is the father of three children. Wilson has a daughter who is the wife of James Server, star University of Kentucky football player.

British Subject Pays $16 Tax to Cross New York Pier

By Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 17.—Harry Blake, a British subject, paid United States customs officials $16 for the privilege of escorting his wife and daughter from one side of a North River pier to the other.

The Blakes had just arrived from Bermuda. When customs authorities demanded that the head of the family pay an $8 head tax for himself and wife, as immigrants, Blake insisted they weren't "landing"—they were just crossing the pier to a steamship on which they intended to sail for England.

He paid the tax, after being assured that he could recover the $16 from the transportation company when he boarded the other ship.

1,200 GILCHRIST MEMBERS HOLD TOWN MEETING

Twelve hundred members of the Gilchrist Association took part in an old-fashioned mock town meeting at Ford Hall, and so strenuous were their demands for "good government" that President Edward F. Putnam was forced several times to rap loudly with his gavel to keep the parliamentarians in order.

Before going to town hall to vote the store employes sartook of an appetizing buffet supper. Between courses Bob Emery led in the singing of Gilchrist songs. Selections were also given by the Gilco quartet, composed of Emery, Frank Smith, Sam Kligerman and John Veidhuis. There was also music by a string quartet from the New England Conservatory of Music; solos by Paul Whittaker and Mrs. Eunice Morgan.

The reports of chairmen showed that the lunch room did a business of $24,000; that insurance was paid during 296 weeks of illness of members; that $3,047 were spent on social activities during the last six months; that 11,479 cases were treated by the store physician or nurse, and that the paid circulation of the Ace, the store organ, had been increased to 1,000 copies.

President C. C. Ferris of the Gilchrist Company swore in the new officers of the association and in a brief address commended the spirit shown by the organization and by its officers.

Other speakers were Felix Vorenberg, vice-president and secretary of the company; Simon Vorenberg, treasurer of the company, and Joseph A. Campbell of the Law Department of the city of Boston, representing Mayor Curley.

TWO ACCUSED OF HYDE PARK BREAKS

John Dennis, a negro, was held in $2,000 bail on a charge of breaking and entering, and Loriand DeLange, sixty three years old, a white man was held in $3,000 bail on a same charge when arraigned in the West Roxbury Court today. A charge of having burglar tools in his possession was filed against DeLange. Special Officer Shepherd alleged they had been guilty of a series of breaks in Hyde Park and that they had taken loot valued at more than $800. The men pleaded not guilty.

75% OF HOUSEWIVES SOAK EVERYDAY CLOTHES

What does soaking mean to you? Three out of every four housewives always loosen the dirt by letting the clothes soak before they start washing.

With the ordinary soaps, this helped a little but there was still a lot of rubbing to be done. Rinso, an entirely new kind of soap, loosens and dissolves every bit of dirt, without the slightest injury to the clothes. Soak your clothes an hour or more in Rinso and the dirt rinses right out, all but the most stubborn places and those need only a light rubbing.

Rinso is the only soap you need for the entire regular family wash. You don't need any other soap—nor any washing powder with Rinso. Women who are using it say their clothes are spotless and last longer.—Advertisement.

Film Fans Finally Get Courage to Express Opinions on "Movies"

By FRIEDA DAVIS

IT is amazing how many people have had opinions on pictures all this time. For the most part they have kept perfectly quiet about it and let me have my say. Now they are taking this chance to tell what they think or to find out what I haven't told them.

"My Dear Miss Davis," write "Mr. and Mrs." from Winter Hill. "We enjoy your column every evening. It is interesting to hear of pictures in the making and items about the work of popular stars and directors.

"We would like to know when 'Foolish Wives' will be shown in Boston and to hear about Miss Kathlyn Williams and Miss Edith Storey, whom we consider true artists. Why is Miss Williams no longer starred? It is a relief to see a real actress in a film, instead of a young person of small stature, large eyes and curls, whose only talent lies in the ability to wear knee length skirts and act cute and coy. Why is the screen flooded with such a type?

"Recently in a film the star was of this type and Miss Williams was relegated to make a background for her cute antics.

"We think cheap publicity is a great detriment to moving pictures. We think, too, the public wants better pictures, more intelligent stories, attention to detail, and less of the "flapper" type.

"Congratulations on your first birthday, Miss Davis. Best wishes for your success."

A WORD ON MISS WILLIAMS.

BEFORE we speak of Kathlyn Williams and her work, we will announce that "Foolish Wives," the widely advertised million dollar production of Von Stroheim and Universal, is booked for an engagement at the Park Theatre beginning March 6.

Miss Williams was one of the first to be recognized on the screen. She made her mark when she starred in the famous "Adventures of Kathlyn," a serial which was something distinctly new to the majority of theatre-goers. Since then she has not been prominent on the screen until a year or so ago. She was married to Charles Eyton, production manager of the Famous Players-Lasky studio in Hollywood and gave up her motion picture work.

About eighteen months ago she decided to take it up again and was signed up to play with Lasky. Miss Williams' poise has been largely responsible for putting her in what our correspondents call "the background." It has put her into contrast with the flapper stars. There is little question that she is one of the screen's most finished actresses today.

ABOUT THE WRITERS.

"I AM a reader of your column in the American every day, and like it very much," George Whitcomb Palmer writes, "but I am interested in the 'inside workings' of the studio, especially in regard to the reading and passing upon the photoplay synopsis, such as is submitted by a free lance writer.

"I am writing some material now for the movies and would appreciate any information in regard to such matters that you would care to publish in your column."

THE WRITERS' CHANCES.

MR. PALMER has brought up a question that interests a majority of the motion picture fans. Is there a man with soul so dead that he hasn't walked out of a movie theatre and remarked: "Why, I could write a better story than that!" and straightway settled himself to write the great American photoplay? There is no doubt that the average fan has some very filmable ideas. The question is to sell them.

The photoplay market is a very difficult one to "tackle," for producers are making a point of screening well known novels, or of taking the work of tried authors. Samuel Goldwyn has instigated his Eminent Authors' Association and has left the "Imminent" authors to get in as best they can.

I spoke with the assistant head of the Famous Players-Lasky scenario department some time ago and she told me that of all the original manuscripts received by them during two years—and they receive nearly a thousand a week—only four had been accepted.

I don't mean to discourage writers, but I want to state the situation as I know it to be, and to point out the difficulties. Quite the best way to get a hearing is to get into personal contact with a producer, player, or director through a mutual friend. I am told when a scenario is sent in to the studios it is carefully read and a record is made of it. If a story has particular merit there is not much question that it would be given the chance it deserves and be transferred from the scenario department to one of the directors for further consideration. When sending stories to the studios address them to Editor, Scenario Department. I shall be glad to furnish you with the addresses of any studios you wish.

WRITE US!

WRITE in your opinions. Unusual ones, or those that lend themselves to discussion will be printed in this column, though letters should not be too long. If you're not getting what you want from the producers, theatre managers, or me, say so! If you like what you're getting then say that!

Provides Innovation for Public in Line of Five Hour Show

CHARLES H. WALDRON

VIOLIN AND HARP RECITAL ENJOYABLE

Yesterday afternoon in Jordan Hall Mme Delcourt, harpist, and Socrate Barozzi, violinist, both of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, gave a very delightful recital with the assistance of Arthur Fiedler at the piano. The hall was not crowded but the audience was appreciative and enthusiastic.

The program was successfully arranged with two groups of numbers for harp and violin, together, and a group for each artist alone. Mme Delcourt showed herself to be a splendid musician and a thoroughly delightful harpist, who knows well how to get the best effects from her instrument. In the last group, with Mr. Barozzi, Mme Delcourt changed from the pedal harp to the chromatic harp, which has no pedals but which developed the most beautiful tone.

Of the solos The Orientale and the Cniesera, which Mme Delcourt played, and the Devil's Trill, which Mr. Barozzi played, were the most interesting.

WALDRON GIVES PATRONS BIG BARGAIN SHOW

New Continuous Policy Has Increased Patronage at the Casino

"The time has come to give the people a lot for their money," explains Charles Waldron of Waldron's Casino to account for the enormous business since he changed the policy of that house Monday from the conventional burlesque theatre to a continuous policy from 1 p. m. to 11 p. m. at night.

At Waldron's now, in addition to the Columbia burlesque, the audience gets a first run photoplay and a lot of good vaudeville. The full show lasts five hours.

"People are looking for bargains, for something more than they have been getting. I decided to give it to them," says Mr. Waldron.

"It has cost me a lot of money but I think it is the policy which will win out from now on in every line of business."

Mr. Waldron emphasizes that in no respect is the burlesque attraction cut or changed. It is exactly the same show which plays other theatres without vaudeville or pictures.

The policy has been so successful that it is likely other theatres will soon follow suit.

CONCERT BY FLONZALEYS FILLS JORDAN HALL

The Flonzaley Quartet drew to Jordan Hall a full house. The program included the Quartet in E flat major by Georges Enesco (from M. S.), the Beethoven Quartet in D major, and the Eugene Goossens Phantasy Quartet. Surely when we are given the classics preceded and followed by the moderns, it is to the advantage of the classics. The audience seemed to enjoy the Beethoven even more than ever, for the contrast that was given by its position.

The Enesco Quartet was written for and dedicated to the Flonzaley organization, and they gave to the performance every shade that the composer could possibly have had in mind. It is a thing of more than usual beauty in certain parts, but it is not a beauty that is sustained throughout.

From Healthy Cows—From Sanitary Dairies

Van Camp's Milk

The finest milk produced in America. A sterilized milk from high-bred cows. From healthy cows. From sanitary dairies. The result of 20 years of expert effort to produce a Super-Grade.

"The Cow in the Pantry"

Safe and Sterile

Van Camp's Milk comes from healthy, high-bred cows — cows selected for vitality.

The dairies are sanitary. They are constantly inspected.

Then, too, the milk is sterilized after sealing. It comes to you germ-free. The dangers which lurk in ordinary milk are absent in Van Camp's.

Cost Less Than Bottles

Van Camp's is rich whole milk, reduced by evaporation to the thickness of thick cream.

Right after milking it goes into a vacuum. More than half the water is removed there by low heat. Nothing is added, nothing subtracted, save water.

You can use it as cream in your coffee or ice cream. If too rich dilute it somewhat. When you use it as milk, dilute it at least one-half. When you use it for cooking, dilute it still further.

• • • • •

It costs less than bottled milk. Great economy comes in saving waste. You have small cans and large cans to open as you need them.

High milk bills come through guessing on your wants. You often get too much. With Van Camp's you never have a shortage, never an excess.

HARD MUSCLES ARE NOT ALWAYS ACCOMPANIED BY STRENGTH OF CHARACTER

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

DARTMOUTH STAR OUT TO WIN A. A. U. TITLE AT MEET HERE

By CHARLES E. PARKER

Earl "Tommy" Thomson of Dartmouth who, under the intercollegiate rules no longer can represent the Green, will attempt, single-handed, to win the team championship at the annual New England A. A. U. indoor title meet, which is to be run in conjunction with the Harvard-Dartmouth-Cornell triangular meet at Mechanics Building, one week from Saturday.

At least that was the assertion of the greatest hurdler the world has known, as he dispensed hot coffee and hot dogs to the thousands who assembled about the ski-jumping course at the recent Dartmouth Winter carnival, and the entry list now being compiled shows "Tommy's" name among those scheduled to start in five of the nine events on the N. E. A. A. A. U. program.

* * *

"Tommy" is entered in the 45-yard hurdles, the 40-yard and the 300-yard dashes, the running high jump and the 16-pound shot put, and those acquainted with "Tommy's" all-around athletic ability are not so sure but that this great athlete alone may tally more points than will accrue from the combined efforts of any of the teams entered in the meet.

* * *

"Tommy's" big aim, however, will be that of lowering the existing world's record for the 45-yard hurdles. He expected to accomplish this at the recent B. A. A. meet, but failure of the B. A. A. authorities to delay that event until his arrival prevented him from realizing this ambition, and greatly disappointed many of the large throng who had come expressly to witness his hurdle effort.

It seems "Tommy," who is a member of the senior class at Dartmouth, had an examination on the day of the B. A. A. games, and wrote the B. A. A. requesting that, in the event of his failure to arrive on time at the Arena, the hurdle event be postponed until later in the evening. He claims he had assurance that this would be done, but when, due to the lateness of his train, he arrived 25 minutes late, he found the event already had become history.

In practice "Tommy" has twice bettered the existing world's record for the hurdle event; he is a ten-second man in the century dash and relatively fast at the 40-yard event, his anchor performance in the triangular mile relay last year disclosed him as a quarter miler of real ability, a worthy contestant; he has topped six feet in the running high jump, and has a shot put mark of forty feet.

* * *

Consequently he expects to win at least two of the five events in which he is entered and to place sufficiently high in the remaining three to acquire a very healthy point total for the meet.

* * *

"Tommy" announced at the carnival that this will be his last year in amateur competition, and unless his plans change the coming N. E. A. A. A. U. games will furnish local track followers the last opportunity to witness the work of the greatest hurdler the world has known. He has been offered several attractive coaching berths, and expects to follow that occupation for a year or two before starting on a business career.

Benny Leonard Will Box Here for the Elks

Benny Leonard, the world's lightweight champion, who has made known his desire to go out of his class and fight Jack Britton for the welterweight crown, will show at the Boston Arena on March 20 at a big fistic carnival for the charity fund of the Boston Lodge of Elks. Benny will fight Johnny Clinton, New England lightweight champion. The contest is booked for ten rounds. The Elks hope to raise a lot of money for their charity fund and the prices will range from $1.10 to $10 for ringside seats.

WATERTOWN TEAM TAKES ON HOLLISTON FIVE

The Watertown Town team will take on the strong Holliston A. A. team in the Town Hall, Watertown, tomorrow night. Watertown has lost one game in the last fourteen starts, and has a season's record of twenty wins and three defeats.

Holliston has been going great guns this year and has not been defeated for some time. The latter team will put its strongest lineup on the floor in the endeavor to secure a win over the fast-traveling Watertown five.

Holliston is composed of former Natick and Milford stars and as there has always been a great deal of rivalry between former Holliston and Watertown teams, this should be the biggest attraction this season in Watertown.

* * *

Pere Marquette Council, K. of C., will play Revere K. of C. at the South Boston High School Saturday evening. On Washington's Birthday afternoon Pere Marquette and South Boston Councils will engage in the third game of their series for the Peninsular District championship.

* * *

The Seneca Juniors of Cambridge wish to fill the latter part of their basketball schedule. Whether the former part of our name is a hindrance, I don't know, but when we can beat teams in our own class (Bunker Hill Diamonds first game they lost), and then beat teams out of our class (such as Waltham C. C. and Maynard All-Stars), I think we prove our reputation.

Games are wanted with K. of C. second teams, Legion teams and all fast amateur teams in the State.

Managers wishing a good attraction for February 22, please write. Manager, William G. Connolly, No. 40 Second street, or University 533-J.

* * *

The East Boston Tigers would like to arrange games with any 90-100 pound team in the State. For games, write Daniel J. Mullalley, No. 181 Marion street, East Boston, or call East Boston 71946.

* * *

The five representing the Fifth Company, C. A. C., Chelsea, will battle with F. Company, 101st Infantry, M. N. G. as the main attraction for the basketball session at the Cambridge Armory tomorrow night.

The C. A. C. team is the champion of the twelve companies comprising the Massachusetts National Guard, Coast Defence Command, while F Company holds the 101st Infantry championship.

A fast game is assured, as the Cambridge team has a string of fifteen consecutive wins and the loss of tomorrow night's game will serve to put either team out of the running for the interregimental championship.

The F Company team is out for the championship of the State in basketball and is arranging games with teams from the Western part of Massachusetts with the idea of establishing the claim. Arrangements are also under way for a final series with the best National Guard teams in other States to settle the New England championship in the National Guard.

Midgets Want Game

The St. Mary Midgets of Cambridge would like a game at home for Saturday morning with any 90 to 100-pound team. Any team desiring a game with this outfit can arrange it by communicating with Eddie Madden, No. 47 Market street, Cambridge.

O'KEEFE MEETS SILVA AT CARLYLE

Chicago Welterweight Eager to Clean Up Opposition in East

The Carlyle Club clinched a very good bout for its main event next Monday night at the Grand Opera House when it tied up Harry Silva of the West End to meet Denny O'Keefe of Chicago.

O'Keefe comes here with a great record. He has boxed about every good boy in the country and has defeated Eddie Fitzsimmons, Navy Rostan, Pinky Mitchell and Frank Barrieau. He also gave Jack Britton one of the best fights he ever had.

After the bout Britton was quoted in the Chicago Examiner as saying that he could understand how O'Keefe defeated Fitzsimmons and that he hoped O'Keefe would soon grow out of the welterweight class.

O'Keefe has not grown any bigger and Britton has refused to meet him since. No one in the West will box him, so he has had to come East for work.

In Silva he is meeting a boy that has rapidly forged to the front. Silva has met every opponent that the different clubs have asked him to. He has just finished with the Donovan family and now hopes to do the same thing with the O'Keefe clan.

HARVARD BASKETBALL TEAM BEATS WILLIAMS

Harvard defeated Williams last night at basketball in Hemenway gymnasium, 40 to 35. Williams crept within one point of the Crimson with two minutes of play left, but Vic Miller, who had substituted for Isador Black, dropped a basket, and one of his team mates duplicated the feat almost as the whistle blew.

BERNIE WEFERS, JR., IN EVENTS AT LEGION MEET

Bernie Wefers, Jr., N. Y. A. C. metropolitan quarter mile champion, today sent in his entry for Legion games, Washington's Birthday afternoon, in the fifty-yard dash, 440-yard run and New York Legion relay.

Swampscott Girls Win

Gloucester, Feb. 17.—The Swampscott girls' basketball team defeated the Gloucester team, 25 to 11. Gloucester completely outclassed the visitors but owing to the peculiar scoring enabled the visitors to roll up a victory. Miss Morse and Miss Atwell featured for the visitors, while Miss Ross and Miss Burnham starred for the losers.

EXETER IN GAME WITH ANDOVER SATURDAY

Hockey Game of Two Prep. Academies Will Be One Feature of Season

Exeter, N. H., Feb. 17.—Illness is interfering with the preparation of the Exeter hockey team for its ninth annual game with Andover in the Boston Arena Saturday afternoon, Captain Martin and Robert Wright now being out, and "Clem" Coady is gradually recovering from an attack of a cold which kept him out of the game with Newton High.

It is hoped, however, that all of these players will be right for the game. Captain Martin and Coady are the bulwark of the defence and much depends upon them in the coming contest. Wright left for his home in Dorchester early in the week, he being a sub who has been playing wing, and is likely to get his hockey insignia in the game Saturday.

Coach Parker intends to take twelve players to Boston Saturday, including J. R. Pitman l.w., Charles L. Hardy of Arlington c., Percy James r.w., Captain E. W. Martin coverpoint, Clement Coady of Newton point and Mark H. McIntyre of Brookline goal.

The subs will be Blake Cabot and Eliot a Canning, Jr., of Brookline and Robert Wright of Dorchester forwards Francis Turner of Waltham and Franklin Hollis defence and Weston W. Adams of Boston goal tend.

The Exeter-Andover hockey series, instituted in 1914, stands 4 to 3 in favor of Exeter, with one tie game.

The games in others years have resulted as follows: 1914, Exeter 4, Andover 1; 1915, Exeter 5, Andover 0; 1916, Exeter 3, Andover 0; 1917, Andover 2, Exeter 1; 1918, Andover 3, Exeter 2; 1920, Exeter 4, Andover 2; 1921, Andover 4, Exeter 0.

Exeter's record for the season is Exeter 7, Malden High 1; Exeter 8, Rindge 1; Exeter 25, Stone 0; Exeter 9, St. John's Prep 0; Exeter 3, Melrose 3; Exeter 7, M. I. T. Freshmen 3, Exeter 6, Newton High 1.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND HOCKEY TEAM IS COMING

A hockey team from Prince Edward Island is endeavoring to arrange games with the various teams in Boston. The Islanders are very anxious to play here, all the more so, because of the poor showing made by the Dalhousie team which played Harvard and Tech.

The P. E. I. boys are reported to be exceptionally fast and wonderful skaters and have cleaned up on the provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia at the ice game.

CORNELL WILL SEND 113 ENTRIES TO THE BIG MEET

Cornell's contribution to the triangular indoor track meet with Harvard and Dartmouth is 113 entries. Among the men who scored last year, who have been entered again, are H. O. Chapman, who won the 600, Charles Carter, who broke the triangular record in the 1,000 and Gounlock, who was second in the pole vault.

METCALF IS PRESIDENT OF TECH ATHLETIC CLUB

Walter Metcalf, '23, former football star of the University of Rochester, has been elected president of the Technology Athletic Club to succeed E. E. Brokaw, '22, who was forced to give up the presidency because of the pressure of school work. Metcalf comes from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. He had transferred to Annapolis from the University of Rochester where he made his first record in football. In his sophomore year at Tech he captained the 1923 field day football team.

RAY TO GO AFTER RECORD IN BROOKLYN MEET

New York, Feb. 17.—A new indoor record for the distance is expected to be established when Joie Ray of the Illinois A. C., Chicago, premier American distance runner, meets Walter Higgins, the Columbia University star, in a 3,000 metre race in Brooklyn tomorrow night.

Two other members of the field in this race are "Blondy" Romig, of Penn State, national indoor champion at two miles, and Earl Johnson, the Pittsburgh negro, who holds the outdoor titles at five and ten miles.

LEXINGTON AND BELMONT WILL BATTLE TONIGHT

Lexington High basketball five will play its return game with Belmont High this evening. Between the periods, the second teams of the two schools will have a game.

The Lexington lineup will include Collins, McNamara, Moloy, Newhall and Moakley.

The Belmont lineup will be as follows: Brasall, McLean, Farwell, Mead and Ford.

EXPECT READING TO WIN BASKETBALL GAME TODAY

Arlington High will play Reading High tonight. The Reading team is playing a fast game this season, and is favored in tonight's fray.

The Arlington five will line up as follows: Lane, Fall, Miller, Donovan and Roele.

The Reading lineup will include Ham, Horton, Michilini, R. Crosby and G. Crosby.

Eagles Beat Shamrocks

The Roxbury Eagles defeated the Mission Hill Shamrocks in a fast basketball game at the Boston Y. M. C. A., 39 to 16.

The baskets scored by the Eagles were as follows: Hatch, 2; Fairbairn, 2; Mally, 1; Colleran, 1. Shamrocks: O'Connell, 2; Tobin, 1; Buckley, 1; Walsh, 2; Gallagher, 2.

Champion's Life Shows Value of Sports

That active participation in athletics is the greatest Spring of Perpetual Youth is proved by the career of John A. Dodd, who resides with his wife and family at No. 88 Crescent avenue, Dorchester. Mr. Dodd was formerly one of the world's greatest roller skaters and has also retained a very lively interest in this form of recreation.

This advocate of clean, wholesome athletics will celebrate his fifty fourth birthday tomorrow. Mrs. Dodd will have more than one reason for joining in the celebration, as this will also be the twenty-ninth anniversary of her marriage.

Nine children and five grandchildren will also participate in the celebration.

Of late years Mr. Dodd has been associated with the Summer street store of Cobb, Bates & Yerxa as a salesman. He has displayed the same winning qualities as a salesman that gained for him national fame when he was an active contestant in roller skating contests.

Mr. Dodd was born at Plaquemine, Fla., on February 18, 1868. He later came North and was married to Miss Sadie E. Dunn at Springfield.

As a roller skater, Mr. Dodd competed throughout the East and Middle West. For winning a race at New Haven on one occasion he was presented with a diamond belt. He later won the roller skating championship of Connecticut.

At one time Mr. Dodd trained under the direction of the late Mike Murphy, one of the greatest coaches of athletes the world has ever known.

In 1887 Mr. Dodd joined the ranks of the professionals and with Jack Hayes as trainer toured the West, winning sixty-two out of eighty races.

Mr. Dodd later signed articles for a race with Dick Phillips for the championship of America, a diamond belt and $100 a side. The event was staged at New Haven on March 3, 1889, Mr. Dodd gaining a brilliant victory.

Mr. Dodd still takes great interest in all forms of clean athletics, but he says that despite his keen delight in sports he now finds his chief recreation when he is surrounded by his wife, children and grandchildren.

Charley Metro defeated Joe Zaboski in thirty-seven minutes, and Cora Livingstone defeated Ruth Kinsella, of New London, in six minutes.

HARVARD MEETS TECH IN GYM CONTESTS

The suggested Haverford-Harvard-Technology triangular gym meet scheduled at Walker Memorial gym tonight will be a dual affair between the two Cambridge rivals, as Haverford withdrew the last minute. The Tech manager received a telegram from Haverford which said it would be impossible for Haverford to participate.

Tonight's meet will be another one of those rare occasions in which brother meets brother. Way Bailey, one of the star performers at Tech, will perform against his elder brother, who leads the Crimson gymnasts.

The entries follow:

Tumbling—Harvard: Dole, Nickels. Tech: Wood, Davidson, Baker.
Rings—Harvard: Bailey, Dole, Nickels. Tech: Thompson, Shea, McCoy.
Horizontal Bar—Harvard: Bailey, Tuttle, Wood. Tech: Bailey, Kenyon, Follansbee, Bushnell, Maltby.
Parallel Bars—Harvard: Woods, Bailey. Tech: Apolinio, McCoy, Ulbrich.

INSURANCE FIVES WILL PLAY ON HOLIDAY

The Employers' Liability team leaders in the Insurance Basketball League, have now won 8 and lost 2 games, holding first place by a wide margin. The Paige team and the Aetna five are tied for second place, each having won 7 and lost 3 games.

The standing of the other teams at present follows: Hoffman won 6, lost 4; Gilmour, Rothery won 5, lost 5; Field & Cowles won 4, lost 6; Kaler, Carney & Liffler won 2, lost 8; Hinckley & Woods won 1, lost 9.

The interscholastic meet at the Boston "Y" Saturday will cause a lapse in the Insurance League schedule, and the next games will be played on Washington's Birthday morning. Field & Cowles will meet the Aetna five, the Paige team will tackle Gilmour, Rothery, the Hoffman quintet will line up against Hinckley & Woods and the Employers' Liability will close the morning with a game with Kaler Carney & Liffler.

The J. C. Paige Company team of the Insurance League will play the New York insurance basketball champs Saturday in New York.

CHICAGO TEAMS GET AWAY TO EARLY START

White Sox and Cubs Plan for High Positions in League Races

Chicago, Feb. 17.—"Out of seventh place and into the first division" was the slogan of the Cubs and the White Sox as advance guards of the 1922 teams entrained for Spring training quarters. The Cubs will train at Catalina Island, Cal., which is owned by William Wrigley, chief stockholder of the club, and the Sox will do their preparing at Seguin, Texas.

* * *

Pitchers and catchers of the Cubs were in the party which got away today. Outfielders and infielders will leave a week hence. The pitchers and catchers of the White Sox hit the trail for Hot Springs, where they will boil out for a week before joining the rest of the squad at Seguin.

* * *

After mid-season last year Chicago ball fans were forced to live mostly on hopes of future seasons, for it was evident that neither the Sox nor the Bruins had much chance of cutting a swath in the 1921 pennant gambol. These expectations came true when both teams finished in seventh place in their respective leagues.

* * *

Nineteen twenty-two, however, is something else again and hope again flares in the breasts of loyal Chicago fans—than whom there are few more loyal.

Neither team is claiming a pennant as yet, although the moguls that guide the destinies of the Cubs will be sorely disappointed if they fail to land in the first four. The White Sox are still very much in the experimental stage after the disaster that wrecked the team at the close of the 1920 season, and if they finish even a notch better than they did last year most of their adherents will be satisfied.

"I am not counting on anything or making any predictions for this year," said Owner Charles A. Comiskey, "but I will have a pennant-winning team in 1923. Our youngsters are coming along, and if we have any luck in picking up new material the Sox will again be champions in the season after this."

SANBORN TEAM LEADS IN CITY LEAGUE AT Y

The Sanborn team leads the City Basketball League at the Boston "Y" with four games won and one lost. The American Glue team is second with three won and two lost, while the Wetmore, Savage team has won two and lost three, which is likewise the standing of the Decatur Hopkins team.

The next City League games will be played tomorrow. The leaders will play Decatur Hopkins, and the American Glue quintet will tackle the Wetmore, Savage five.

FIRST SQUAD OF CUBS OFF FOR TRAINING CAMP

Chicago, Feb. 17.—Nine ambitious ball tossers made up the advance guard of the Chicago Cubs which got away today for the Spring training grounds at Catalina Island.

Seven others will join the party at Kansas City. Six more will be picked up at Los Angeles and the squad will begin active training Monday morning.

BASEBALL DROPPED AS OLYMPIC SPORT

Paris, Feb. 17.—The French committee in charge of the Olympic games for 1924 has rejected baseball as an official sport, selecting instead canoe racing to complete its program.

It was indicated, however, that an unofficial international baseball tournament in connection with the Olympiad would be approved.

Star for St. Louis

St. Louis, Feb. 17.—Acquisition of Jack Overlock of Chicago, a right handed pitcher formerly with the St Paul American Association Club, is announced by the St. Louis Americans.

B. A. A. VICTORY KNOCKS CASEYS OUT OF THE HOCKEY RACE

Pere Marquette's hockey team has lost a chance to try for the national hockey championship. The victory achieved by the B. A. A. spelled not only defeat, but also disaster for the Caseys. The Knights suffered a bad night, for they were beaten only by one goal.

It was George Percy who propelled the puck into the South Boston team's cage. That happened in the second period. The triumph gives the B. A. A. a chance to beat the Westminsters as the Eastern representative in the United States Hockey League competition.

That game, which will be a battle royal, not as battle royals have been conducted, but one in the real sense of the term, will pack the spacious Arena next Wednesday. It will be the big local game of the season at the local rink.

The Unicorn contest with the Pere Marquette sextet was punctuated with many clashes, all however, conducted and received in a very friendly manner.

Joe Stubbs played for the Horned Horse team and his activities as well as his presence and his inspiration steadied the Unicorn aggregation so that Pere Marquette could not and did not score.

Jack Britton Risks Crown Tonight

Boston Beats Chelsea

The Boston Y. M. H. A. defeated the Chelsea Y. M. H. A. at the Williams Schools, Chelsea, 19 to 16.

The game was tied all the way until the last minute. Wolk played exceptionally good for the Boston team and Riche for Chelsea.

GLOUCESTER HIGH BEATS BOSTON COLLEGE HIGH

Gloucester, Feb. 17.—Gloucester High defeated Boston College High, 15 to 12. It was the best game in the fishtown this season.

The boys from the James street institution led at the end of the first half, 6 to 2. The stellar work of Curtis and Nelson enabled Gloucester to go out front in the second half although it was nip and tuck in this period. Gloucester excelled by passing and team work. Minehan and Barry starred for B. C. High.

MONEY-MAD BALL STARS WORRY MAGNATES OVER 1922 SEASON

By WILLIAM J. CHIPMAN

New York, Feb. 17 Major league baseball players are crazed by the greatest wave of money madness the game ever knew Contracts that do not run into five figures are being spurned by players who could not have made the major league grade ten years ago, and club owners are coaxing the recalcitrants in vain

Babe Ruth wants $75,000 Rogers Hornsby avers he must receive $25,000 a year for three years and Harry Heilman is trying to take Frank Navin over for $15,000 To say nothing of the $54,000 case of Rousch

Magnates admit that one-half of the regular players in the major leagues remained unsigned, and when this much is admitted it is safe to say that the percentage is much higher And this with the training camps scheduled to open within the fortnight

The condition of the two New York clubs probably is a fair example of how the rest of the clubs stand. The Giants and the Yankees are not in the habit of airing their disputes with players, but demands this Winter became so exorbitant that the owners decided to let the fans know the real conditions

Of the Yankee pitchers Jones Bush, Mays, Shawkey and O'Doul have yet to agree to terms. Harper has been excused from reporting Mays is demanding more money in spite of a contract that has another year to run. Barnes and Douglas, two of the Giants' most effective boxmen, have not yet agreed to terms

The Giant catching staff, Smith and Snyder, remains out of the fold, and so does Schang, the regular Yankee backstop. Hollman and Devormer, second and third string Yankee catchers, have signed contracts

The Yankee infield is fairly well corraled, with Scott, Fewster, Baker and McNally in line, but Ward and Pipp have not signed. Ward demands $10 000.

Frisch and Groh have signed Giant contracts, but the other half of McGraw's million dollar quartet is out—Kelley and Bancroft. Rawlings, who saved the World's Series for the Giants, but who will warm the bench this year, has not signed

Word comes from California that Irish Meusel has signed a Giant contract for $10 000. If true, this will complete McGraw's outfield. But Miller Huggins has plenty to worry him in the outer works. Bob Meusel, a habitual holdout, and Ruth have not come to terms

Of all the list of unsigned players the greatest one—Babe Ruth—probably will be the easiest one any club owner will have to deal with Babe has more ground for his $75 000 demand than many of the others have for $10,000, and his club owners know it.

In addition, Babe has his full share of intelligence and knows how to strike a business deal

His decision to start to camp now and talk business later is a good example for other players who are demanding salary increases. If the rest of the field will imitate Babe's move a difficult situation will be sooner overcome

Downes and Russell In Feature at Lynn

Cleveland Johnny Downes will take the place of Dick Russell of Lynn against Sailor Byron of Worcester in the feature bout of ten rounds at the Olympic A. C. of Brockton tonight Russell was obliged to withdraw from the contest on account of an injury received in a tussle Monday night at Lynn. Downes makes an excellent substitute

• • •

The Naumkeag A. A. of Salem will have Johnny Avilla of Lowell swapping punches with Young Goula of Woonsocket in the feature quarrel of ten frames at its show this p. m. Both of these men are rugged, two-handed fighters and should furnish the fans with an abundance of thrills. Buddy Clark of Salem and Willie Nelson of Brockton will furnish the fireworks in the semi-final of eight frames. There will also be a couple of sixes.

• • •

Vic Richardson, tired of trying to induct Chick Suggs to enter a ring with Mickey Travers, has claimed the white featherweight championship of New England for his protege. Travers has been fighting in brilliant form during the past six months and should not experience much trouble defending his laurels. Travers will meet all-comers at 125 pounds which is the featherweight limit set by the Massachusetts and New York Boxing Commissions. Travers has also drawn the color line. Vic Richardson, his manager, does not believe that mixed bouts tend to help the boxing game

GIBBONS SCORED 20 K.O'S IN TWENTY-ONE FIGHTS

Tom Gibbons, leading aspirant for Jack Dempsey's crown, who battles Harry Greb on March 13 at Madison Square Garden for the privilege of meeting the champion of the world in the ring, compiled a wonderful record during 1921.

Out of twenty-one fights Gibbons won all but one by the knockout route, which is a record unequalled by any other boxer during the year. Bartley Madden was the only one of Gibbons' opponents who succeeded in going the limit with the St Paul heavyweight Madden lasted ten rounds.

Gibbons fought 59 rounds in the 21 bouts, his average fight lasting a little less than three rounds

Tony Melcholr, the first man to encounter Gibbons, lasted less than a round

Al Reich also never heard the bell winding up the first stanza. Paul Sampson went less than two rounds, Sergeant Norcross endured less than one, and then Tom went into the fourth spasm before he made Larry Williams take the count

"Porky" Flynn met Gibbons when the St. Paul battler was out of form, and as a result the Boston veteran remained until the middle of the 11th round.

Jack Heenan and Sergeant Ray Smith each kissed the canvas in the second, while Jack Clifford and Willie Keeler each lasted three minutes longer

Willie Meehan, who holds a decision over Jack Dempsey, went out from a wallop on the chin in one round, while Dan Dowd hung around until the third

Bill Reed and Joe Burke each did the Brodie in the second, while Clay Turner, Fred Allen and Soldier Jones passed out in round No. 1

Then Gibbons took on Dan Dowd again, and Daniel, by much back legging and falling, did stand up until the sixth opened

Hope Mullen put up his hands in the first stanza, and a second later he was ready to be carried out

Then Bartley Madden came along and lasted 10 rounds of a furious fight. Gibbons claims that Madden did nothing but run and cover throughout.

MEDBURY

Says One Guy Thought a Tonsorial Parlor Was a Place Where you Went to Have Your Tonsils Taken Out.

Some of the large barber shops are installing orchestras and serving tea and cakes. The first thing we know we'll have to be paying a cover charge.

The head barber will hand us a bill of fare to order from.

If you want something light you can order a shave and if you want something heavier you can ask for a shampoo or a massage.

The musicians will come in handy. While the barber is trying to sell you a bottle of hair tonic the orchestra can be playing "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

A lot of the barber shops already have fancy names. One guy thought a tonsorial parlor was a place where you went to have your tonsils taken out.

These barber shops will soon be run on the order of Ziegfeld's Midnight Frolics with a chorus of fifty manicurists

Can you imagine going into one of these Barberets and asking for a shave a-la-minute?

Still this isn't any worse than asking for a shampoo en casserole.

It won't seem like anything to go in and ask for a haircut with Thousand Island dressing.

It will be wonderful to be shaved while you're drinking tea and listening to the orchestra play operatic selections from Peroxide.

People will flock there to get a haircut just so they can listen to the scalper song from the Indian opera, Bay Rum.

Business men won't care whether the barbers are alright or not so long as the music is good.

Before long we may read an ad something like this: "Come in and listen to our Saturday afternoon concert of special music. Lyrics by William Atteridge, Melodies by Victor Herbert."

Another one will read: "Visit our tonsorial cabaret, absolutely the best program of any barber shop in town"

It's not at all unlikely that the big circuits might add a few barber shops to their string of theatres.

So don't be surprised if you see an electric sign out in front of a tonsorial parlor which reads, "High Class Vaudeville and Haircuts."

ATHLETES FROM FIFTEEN 'Y'S' IN MEET

The "Y" athletes in Boston, Cambridge, Brockton, Malden, Lynn, Beverly, Melrose, Hyde Park, Quincy, Rockland, Abington, Everett, Chelsea, Newton and Somerville will gather at the Boston "Y" Saturday for the Eastern "Y" sectional athletic meet.

This is one of the seven qualification meets which will be held in various cities in preparation for the "two-State" honors at the Boston "Y" on February 25.

The men in the events other than the relays will run in one class in the finals. The relays will be divided into three classes, according to membership, under 1,000, over 1,000 and over 2,000.

The "two-State" shield will go to the winning "Y," and gold, silver and bronze medals of special design will be given the individual place winners.

SCHOOLBOY ATHLETES IN INDOOR CARNIVAL AT EAST ARMORY

By FRED C. LANE

The fifth indoor carnival of the Boston High and Latin Schools will give new color to the athletic life of the schoolboys of the city. The track and field events of a meet have become monotonous to the youngsters, who will have a new experience tomorrow at the East Armory.

Judging from the advance sale of tickets the attendance will far exceed that of any other year. The competition in each race and division should be the keenest Coaches have been working daily with the youngsters in expectation of this big affair.

• • •

With the exception of the regimental meet, that takes place the latter part of next month, this clash of the high schools of Boston is the largest athletic event of the indoor season.

• • •

The meet will be run similar to that of 1921. Because of the large number of contestants from the various schools all races, with the exception of the two-lap relay races, will be decided in heats.

There will be twenty-three races with 123 boys taking part The drawings for pole and other positions which took place recently at the physical director's office did not give any school an advantage

Coaches will devote the rest of the week to teaching the lads the art of taking the banked corners as they should be taken. Many mistakes have been noticed in the schoolboys running and these faults will be corrected

• • •

The track team representing Huntington continues successfully in its conquest to set up a record that future teams at the school will look up to with awe Few expected the Back Bay school would give the Harvard yearlings such a defeat. The Harvard team made easy work of Boston Latin and English High but it was like a toy in the hands of the Huntington athletes.

• • •

Harvard won the relay race and it was a mighty close affair. Had Coach Whiting of Huntington used Bill Spinney and Captain Parker on the quartet the result would have been different. As they each had run in several heats and events during the afternoon, Coach Whiting decided that they should rest during the relay.

• • •

The Newton Hockey team that will meet Melrose tonight at the Arena will force the leaders of the schoolboy league to the fullest extent to win. Since Somerville surprised Arlington, the very same happening may take place at the large ice palace this evening

Newton has played an erratic game this season winning from the best teams and falling down on the easy assignments. If the Garden City lads are in the same form that was displayed early in the season Melrose will be forced to the limit.

A Delightfully Refreshing Story of Love and a Woman's Way With a Man

What Has Happened So Far

James Edgerton, 3d, of an old and aristocratic New York family, has been living abroad. He returns to the metropolis on hearing that the firm founded by his forbears has failed. He pays dollar for dollar and finds himself left with an inherited apartment, luxuriously furnished, which an iron-clad will has entailed. With two dollars in his pockets he refuses the offer of an old-time friend to help, and casts about for a means to earn a livelihood. He goes to his luxurious apartments and is startled to find a young woman in possession.

Now Go On With the Story.

"WILL you please go out again at once!" she said, and he work up partly

"This — this is perfectly incredible," he said slowly.

"It is, indeed," she said, placing a snowy finger upon an electric button and retaining it there.

He regarded her without comprehension, muttering:

"I—I simply cannot realize it—that cat—those g garments — you ——"

"There is another thing you don't realize," she said with heightened color; "that I am steadily ringing the janitor's bell—and the janitor is large and violent and Irish, and he is probably halfway upstairs by this time——"

"Do you take me for a malefactor?" he asked, astounded.

"I am not afraid of you in the least," she retorted, still keeping her finger on the bell.

"Afraid of me? Of course you are not."

"I am not. Although your two suit cases are probably packed with the silver from my dressing stand."

"What!"

"Then—then—what have you put into your suitcases? What are you doing in this apartment? And will you please leave your suitcases and escape immediately?"

Her voice betrayed a little unsteadiness now, and Edgerton said:

"Please don't be frightened if I seem to remain——"

"You are remaining."

"Of course I am." He forced an embarrassed smile. "I've got to; I haven't any other place to go. There are all kinds of complications here, and I think you had better listen to me and stop ringing. The janitor is out, anyway."

"He is not!" she retorted, now really frightened: "I can hear him coming up the stairway—probably with a p-pistol——"

Edgerton turned red. "When I next set eyes on that janitor," he said, "I'll probably knock his head off. . . . Don't be frightened! I only meant it humorously. Really, you must listen to me, because you and I have some rather important matters to settle within the next few minutes."

In his growing perplexity and earnestness he placed his suit cases on the rug and advanced a step toward her, and she shrank away, her hands flat against the wall behind her, the beautiful, frightened eyes fixed on his—and he halted.

"I haven't the slightest notion who you are," he said, bewildered; "but I'm pretty sure that I'm James Edgerton, and that this is my apartment. But how you happen to be inhabiting it I can't guess, unless that rascally janitor sublet it to you, supposing that I'd be away for another year and never know it."

"You!—James Edgerton!" she exclaimed.

Drawn by Charles Dana Gibson

"It's very noble of him to claim relationship with two poverty-stricken old maids, don't you think so, Diana?" asked Silvette, caressing her braid.

"My steamer docked yesterday."

"You are James Edgerton?—of Edgerton, Tennant & Co.?"

He began to laugh.

"I was James Edgerton, of Edgerton, Tennant & Co.; I am now only a silent partner in Fate, Destiny & Co. . . . If you don't mind—if you please—who are you?"

"Why, I'm Diana Tennant!"

"Who?"

"Diana Tennant! Haven't you ever heard of my sister and me?"

"You mean you're those two San Francisco nieces?" he asked, astonished.

"On—the roof!"

"Yes: we have a roof garden—some geraniums and things, and a hammock. It's just a makeshift until we secure employment. . . . Is it possible that you are really James Edgerton? And didn't you know that we had rented your apartment by the month?"

He passed an uncertain hand over his eyes.

"Will you let me sit down a moment and talk to you?" he said.

"Please—of course. I do beg your pardon, Mr. Edgerton. . . . You must understand how startling it was to look up and see a man standing there with two suit cases."

How a Social Idler of an Impoverished Old New York Family Made Good in the End

He began to laugh; and after a moment she ventured to smile in an uncertain, bewildered way, and seated herself in a big velvet chair against the light.

They sat looking at each other, lost in thought; he evidently absorbed in the problem before him; she, unquiet, waiting, the reflex of unhappy little perplexities setting her sensitive lips aquiver at moments.

"You did rent this apartment from the janitor?" he said at length.

"My sister and I—yes. Didn't he have your permission?"

"No. . . But don't worry. . . . I'll fix it up somehow; we'll arrange——"

"It is perfectly horrid!" she exclaimed. "What in the world can you think of us? . . . But we are quite innocent—it was merely chance. Isn't it strange, Mr. Edgerton!—Silvette and I had walked and walked and walked, looking for some furnished apartment within our means which we might take by the month; and in Fifty-sixth street we saw the sign, 'Apartment and Studio to let for the Summer,' and we inquired, and he let us have it for almost nothing. . . And we never even knew that it belonged to you."

"To whom did you draw your checks for the rent?"

"We were to pay the janitor."

"Have you done so?" he asked sharply.

"N no. We arranged—not to pay—until we could afford it——"

"I'm glad of that! Don't you pay that scoundrel one penny. As for me, of course I couldn't think of accepting——"

"Oh, dear! oh, dear!" she said in pretty despair; "I've got to tell you everything now! Several humiliating things—circumstances—very tragic, Mr. Edgerton."

"No, you need not tell a single thing that is likely to distress you."

"But I've got to! You don't understand. That wretched janitor has put us in a position from which there is absolutely no escape. Because I—we ought to go away instantly—b-but we—can't!"

"Not at all, Miss Tennant. I ought to leave you in possession, and I—I'm trying to think out how to—to do it."

"How can we ask you to do such a——"

"You don't ask; I've got to find some means—ways—expedients——"

"But we can't turn you out of your own place!"

"No, but I've got to turn myself out. If you'll just let me think——"

"I will—oh, I will, Mr. Edgerton; but please, please let me explain the dreadful and humiliating conditions first, so that you won't consider me absolutely shameless."

"I don't!"

"You will unless I tell you—unless I find courage to tell you how it is with my sister and me."

"I'd like to know, but you must not feel obliged to tell me."

"I do feel obliged! I must! We're poor. We've spent all our money, and we can't go anywhere else very well!"

Edgerton glanced at the luxury in the next room, astonished.

"You don't understand, of course," she said flushing. "How could you suppose us to be almost penniless living here in such a beautiful place with all those new trunks and gowns and pretty things! But that is exactly why we are doing it!"

She leaned forward in her chair, the tint of excitement in her cheeks.

"After the failure, Silvette and I hadn't anything very much!—you know how everything of uncle's went—" She stopped abruptly. "Why—why, probably everything of yours went, too! Did it?"

He laughed: "Pretty nearly everything."

"Oh! oh!" she cried; "what a perfectly atrocious complication! Perhaps you haven't money enough to—to go somewhere else for a while. Have you?"

"Well, I'll fix it somehow."

"Mr. Edgerton!" she said excitedly. "Silvette and I have got to go!"

WHO'S WHO IN HOME

YOUR CHILD MAY TALK TOO MUCH

By W. A. McKeever

DO not permit your aggressive child to win all the plaudits. Too often mere brazenness is mistaken for brilliancy. Loud music is not better than that of softer tone, but it may attract a longer-range attention.

Your talkative child is likely to be too much noticed and your reflective child too little. See that each gets his fair amount of recognition.

Your conversational type may bring his peculiar talents to the dinner table and display them there while young mechanical genius may come with no fine quality apparent. However, you can and should explain the inconspicuous genius to the uniformed visitor.

Favorable Opinion

In order to grow and increase its product, the hidden talent of your boy or girl must have its share of favorable opinion. If you fail to search the young character through, the latent genius is likely to die.

Circled about the table with me today are five kinds of children—a non-talkative girl musical genius; a motherly type of girl, highly skilled in the finery of needle art; an inventor type of boy, who has made an electric churn of an old fan; a serious, domestic-minded girl, who carries the burdens of the household in her subconsciousness; a rapid-fire boy conversationalist, who entertains all with his witticisms.

Now, I have carefully inquired into all these charming young personalities, in order to show each one his full share of attention and to encourage his genius, whatever it may be. The talkative boy performed conspicuously and required no coaxing or other provision, but the talent of the others had to be sought. The casual visitor might have overlooked nearly all of it. My method was to ask for the explanation of each young personality and to follow this till the peculiar achievement was observed.

To go to the parlor to hear one sing, to go to the kitchen, to the workshop, to the laboratory, to the study room—all for the purpose of appreciating the budding genius of each member of a family of children—this might appear unnecessary and trivial to some. To me, however, it is expressive of "dynamic citizenship." It is a sure means of assisting the young to create in full their own personalities.

Then, while you are busy bringing out the "Who's Who" among the children, why not bring Mother into this scheme? Too often Mother must be contented to find all her pleasure in her quiet enjoyment of the achievements of the other members of the family group.

The other children and the father, also, must learn to switch the conversation to her side occasionally and must elicit favorable attention to her talents and achievements. Certainly, she has talents hidden away somewhere; otherwise her children would not be so brigh .

Serious Inquiry

In this connection, it may be shown that children are slow to "discover" their parents' accomplishments. Who and what is my mother? These two questions should direct the serious inquiry of every youth and his sister.

No matter how modest, how unpretentious the parent may be, for the child to search the older character through in quest of the quiet genius there is certain to increase respect, if not reverence, on the part of the younger member.

Wherefore, look to "Who's Who" of every member of the home group—Father, Mother, Sister, Brother—and play this up till each enjoys his own deserved share of recognition. Such methods will tend to equalize the pleasure of all and to add much to the sum total of household enjoyment.

Rich Girl, Poor Girl—A Fine New Serial

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

(Copyright, 1922, by Star Company.)

"DRINKING?" Adelaide suggested.

Richard laughed. "You have hit the nail on the head, child! Yes, you can get stuff to drink there if you know the ropes. And we fellows who are going know the ropes. Forsyth and I know them especially well. I am taking a girl; he is taking Pat. Two other couples are going with us. There is really no harm in it—just a bit of fun. But the old people would consider it a sin against the commandment about keeping the Sabbath holy. Besides which, mother would fuss and fret if Pat was not back at home by nine o'clock. You understand, don't you?"

Put in His Place

"Yes, I understand."

Again Adelaide started to take up the glass of sherry. But once more her companion checked her.

"See here, you are an awfully good little sport! I never get a chance for a good talk with you—but I wish I did. I like you. You know that, don't you?"

"I have never thought anything about it."

"Well, I do! And I have been wondering why you don't like me?"

"Who says I don't?" Adelaide asked, flushing hotly.

"Your manner says it," Richard replied. "You avoid me all the time. Have I ever done anything to vex you?"

"Certainly not."

She tried to draw her hand from his grasp. Before she could guess his intention he drew her to him and kissed her.

"There!" he exclaimed, as he released her, "I have wanted to kiss you ever since you came—and now I have done it!"

There was the sound of a footstep in the hall. Someone was going up the stairs. Whoever it was might have glanced from the hall into the dining room.

"How dare you!" Adelaide exclaimed passionately, facing the smiling young man, her eyes flashing with anger.

"I dared because I like you!" he said with another laugh. "You can be nice to other men—can go driving with Dr. Carter and let him stand around here talking to you long after he has finished his visit to my mother. Yet you——"

He stopped abruptly as Estelle appeared in the doorway.

"Miss Brown," she announced, "Dr. Carter is here."

As Estelle withdrew Adelaide faced Richard. She was very pale.

"That was Dr. Carter who went up just now!" she said hoarsely. "He must have passed this door."

"What if he did?" the man sneered. "To the devil with him, anyway. Does he think he is the only man who has a right to look at you?"

But the girl did not answer him. Instead she hurried out into the hall. But he called after her:

"We can depend upon you for Sunday, can't we, please?"

"Miss Patricia can depend upon me?" she said briefly.

He stood still until he heard her light footsteps reach the upper landing and go towards his mother's room.

Then he opened the door of the sideboard and pouring out a glass of sherry for himself, drank it.

"She's a darned sight too pretty to be in a position like this!" he muttered. "But it's slick for me that she is here! I hope I have not spoiled my sport by flushing the game. I must be more careful in the future!"

Adelaide paused for a moment outside Mrs. Hollingshead's door. Her heart was beating fast. She wanted to collect her thoughts before entering the room.

But as she noted how her hand trembled she decided that it would be well for her to get through the ordeal ahead of her before she had time to reflect on what had happened.

Turning the knob, she entered the room.

Mrs. Hollingshead was sitting in her armchair just as the attendant had left her a few minutes ago. Dr. Carter was standing by her, his fingers on her pulse, his watch in his hand.

He did not look up until he had finished taking the pulse. Then, as he closed his watch, he glanced at Adelaide and bowed.

"Good afternoon," he murmured.

"Good afternoon." The attendant returned his greeting in the same manner. "My dear," to Mrs. Hollingshead, "here is your sherry. I am sorry to have been so long getting it."

"I wondered what was detaining you," the invalid said.

"Mr Richard came into the dining room while I was there and stopped me to tell me of an invitation he was accepting for next Sunday," she said bravely.

"An invitation? Where?" the mother asked solicitously.

"Somewhere up in Westchester County," the girl answered glibly.

Quite Excused

Inwardly she was despising herself for falling in so readily with Richard Hollingshead's plans. Still—it was as well to begin now to take the part that she must act later.

"Is he going alone?" Mrs. Hollingshead asked.

"No; another man is going with him," Adelaide replied. "He will undoubtedly tell you about it. I only mentioned it to explain how it happened that I did not come directly back with your wine. I stopped to talk with your son."

"That was quite all right, my dear," the patient said. "I am glad you told me that Richard is not going alone. I feel easier when he has a friend with him. I hope Patty is to be at home on Sunday?"

"I have not heard her say anything to the contrary," the girl evaded. "Will you drink your wine?"

Best Recipes

Fruit Salad

Dressing: Butter size of English walnut, 4 tablespoonfuls vinegar, 4 tablespoonfuls granulated sugar, 1 teaspoonful salt, 1 teaspoonful mustard, 2 eggs well beaten. Put butter and vinegar in double boiler and let stay long enough to just melt the butter. Take off stove and let cool. Mix the sugar, salt, mustard and eggs together and add to the butter and vinegar when cool. Put all in double boiler and cook (stirring constantly) until it thickens, just a few minutes. This will keep a long while in a cool place. When ready to make a salad (for, say, 5 or 6 people), whip a cupful of cream and add enough of the dressing to make it as tart as liked. Arrange on lettuce leaves the following: Two oranges (cut up), 2 bananas (sliced), ½ pound Malaga or Tokay grapes (cut in two and seeds removed). Mix in a little of the dressing. Put the balance of the dressing on top of fruit and sprinkle over this about a handful of chopped walnut meats. Last add about a dozen preserved cherries.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

An Unworthy Love

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a single woman and in love with a married man, and I am sure he is in love with me—his actions prove that he is. We have been deeply interested in each other for the last four years. We see each other every day.

His wife did not know this affair was going on between us, but she knows it now, and I fear that there is terrible quarreling going on between them.

Miss Fairfax, I am thinking that this man is deceitful, both to his wife and to me. I feel that he tells his wife that he is not in love with me, and I know that he is. Please tell me what to do, as I want to hold his friendship as long as I can.

S. A.

OH, no, you don't want to hold his friendship. You want to rid yourself of it as soon as ever you can. You know he isn't worthy of any woman's love. You are miserable both because of the injustice you are doing the man's wife and because of the injustice you are letting him do you. The only way for you to be happy and at peace with yourself is to do the fair and decent thing and put him right out of your life.

Extravagance.

"DANDERINE"

Grows Thick, Heavy Hair

35-cent Bottle Ends all Dandruff, Stops Hair Coming Out

Ten minutes after using Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes, but really new hair—growing all over the scalp. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow long, strong and luxuriant. One application of Danderine makes thin, lifeless, colorless hair look youthfully bright, lustrous, and just twice as abundant.—Advertisement.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat, also take glass of Salts before eating breakfast.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell a lot of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Advertisement.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

—By B. C. FORBES—

One thing that a great many business men I've talked with during recent weeks agree upon is this:

Nineteen hundred and twenty-two will be a year of only modest profits, and to earn even modest profits unusually strenuous efforts will have to be made to secure business.

* * *

Outside of New York pessimism is not general. In certain farming sections conditions are still extremely uncomfortable. So, also, in parts of the South. But even in that section there is a disposition to count upon gradual improvement.

* * *

* * *

I've just received a letter which will probably interest, and perhaps help, many concerns and many individuals, executives as well as salesmen, and also other folks. This letter was not written with any idea of its being published, but its informality really adds to its directness, its "punch." Here are timely extracts:

"The next five years will be selling years. Most executives or so-called salesmen don't seem to know what that means, I find. I read a national bank letter the other day saying that the main thing to watch this year was economy of operation. Others say the same thing. But every salesman calling on various lines of manufacturers and retailers knows that when Mr. Manager has got his expenses to a minimum he still finds he is losing money if he is not making sales.

* * *

"I am coaching Bob in selling. For weeks it didn't go. He would complain that after he had told the story so that its lesson was quite obvious and depended upon his man's judgment to buy, somehow it didn't seem to work. 'You don't depend upon a man's judgment to sell him,' I said. 'You depend upon his imagination.' And I explained simply the three open doors to a man's mind and how to reach them. Bob is trying that and he says—as every student of selling does—that it works.

* * *

"America has been a buying nation so long that many sales managers and salesmen alike have forgotten what salesmanship means. I was out of the game during the four years of that so-called buying market. I stepped back into selling in 1921, and not for one moment can I say I found selling one iota more difficult than when I left it early in 1914. Human nature doesn't change. And successful salesmanship is based more upon that than upon anything else. My present manager told me when I was hired that one of our company's hundred thousand dollar salesman was such a success because he knew advertising so well. I ventured that the true reason was not that he knew advertising so well, but that he knew human nature better. I met him, talked with him, and he said that was the exact answer.

"If you don't realize that retail houses are losing thousands of dollars in business every day by not carrying complete lines of the things folk want, talk to your wife. The dealer has not got the goods. He must be sold. The manufacturer must be sold. Why, half the people are ready to buy right now. Because the manufacturer has not learned to sell, or forgotten how, because the jobber never did know how to sell, and because the retailer kills more sales than he makes, they still say there's a buyer strike.

* * *

"Some people say the present trouble is 'psychological.' The present trouble really is that we don't know how to sell.'

"Psychological? H——. The buyer's trouble is not that. It's just a plain case of no cuts.

* * *

"Prosperity made him so flabby that now he's afraid to venture on a merchandise voyage unless the sun is shining and the waters calm. He needs force in large doses. I find he can even be shamed into buying. He can be hounded into it. He can be kidded into it. But don't approach any man today expecting he is going to be a buyer. YOU'VE GOT TO SELL HIM FOR HIS OWN GOOD AND THE GOOD OF BUSINESS. Five minutes after he's made his first profit he'll call you up and thank you for it, and you have made a customer for life. Folks take off their hats to the man that gives them a good licking which they afterwards find out was for their own good.

"You must CREATE business. And that is the saleman's job. American business this year does not depend so much upon rigid economy as upon the American salesman's strategy in inducing all business to loosen up. Granted, you have the finest article or the most splendid service in the world, you never made a nickel unless you could sell it.

"Right now BUSINESS' PROBLEM IS NOT TO STUDY SAVING PENNIES by economy, BUT TO MAKE DOLLARS by selling their man. Study strategy, and salesmanship will do the rest."

After all, there isn't a human being who isn't a salesman or saleswoman. We may not have to sell merchandise. But we have to sell our ability, our skill, our knowledge, our personality, or something else. It is just as much salesmanship when a young lady wins a highly desirable husband as it is when a salesman sells a typewriter.

So, when this writer emphasizes the importance of strategy, does he not come pretty near hitting the nail on the head?

MEXICAN PETE UNDER BEAR ATTACK

Drops More Than Six Points; Gains Few in the Last Hour; Losses Average Small

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Most stocks were down in New York at the close, and a number were unchanged, while those to show gains were few. The market was weakest in the last hour and did not end much above its bottom level. Mexican Petroleum was off almost seven points at its lowest. Pan-American sagged about three. Otis Elevator declined four on one transaction. Trading was of good volume, approximating 700,000 shares.

During the second hour there was nothing definite about the trend and the market was irregular at noon. It had a rather heavy tone at that time, however. Mexican Petroleum was given the most attention by traders, having receded almost four points during the forenoon and going still lower later. The latest excuse for bear pressure upon this stock was salt water in one of its wells. United Drug increased its loss and Adams Express had become one of the weakest issues. Columbia Gas sold at a record high. American Snuff dropped eight points. The mid-day movement was toward a lower level but the recessional was halted in the afternoon. Call money opened at 4 per cent. While most continental exchange rates advanced a little, sterling eased off.

MIXED AT OUTSET.

The market had a mixed movement at the outset, but eased off without delay and within thirty minutes verged on weakness. Doheny oils were leaders in the decline, Pan American quickly sagged one point and Mexican Petroleum more than two. Other issues to drop a point or more included Davison Chemical, Gulf States Steel and Crucible. There were some strong spots in the list. Jewell Tea advanced more than seven points to its highest since 1920 and United Fruit gained more than a point. Before the end of an hour Sumatra's gain exceeded three. Texas Land Trust, which soared sixty points on Thursday, slumped fifteen this morning. There was a rally before midmorning in which sugars figured. Cuba Cane preferred moved up more than a point and Manati bettered its price by more than two. General Asphalt became strong, while Associated Dry Goods, United Drug and American Ice weakened.

BONDS WERE HIGHER.

The strength of the bond market in general was demonstrated by Liberty issues in particular. Wall Street now believes that there will be no bonus legislation at this session of Congress. The selling of Mexican Petroleum was based on rumors that the Obregon government would increase the export tax on crude oil. Fluctuations in the case of most stocks was based upon shifts in the position of professional traders. The lack of public interest in the market is the subject of much comment. In some quarters it is thought this indifference may result in liquidation of a number of stocks which have been boosted recently by pool operations. Investors are paying more attention to bonds than to stocks and casual speculators have not been lured by advancing prices. A little more borrowing demand was reported in the stock loan market yesterday. The Federal Reserve system's reserve ratio is 76.4, against 76.1 a week ago. The Boston ratio stands at 73.7 aginst 76.0. New York did better, advancing from 81.7 to 81.9.

TRADING SLACK ON BOSTON EXCHANGE

Price Range Narrow and the Market Without Feature; Dull Session for Curb

The Boston market had a firm and colorless start, many issues being unchanged on first quotations. Trading was featureless here during the forenoon. By noon the list was irregular, gains and losses about balancing. Coppers were mixed in movement and rails somewhat heavy. Trading in packing issues was confined to Swift & Company which was up a fraction. Edison and Eastern Steamship were early leaders, both losing gains. Point or more gains were made by New River preferred and Mississippi Power. Calumet & Hecla slumped 5, and point or more losses were shown by Island Creek and Eastern Steamship. Losses exceeded gains in the afternoon. Rutland Railroad was up 1 and Swift & Co. 1½. Waldorf and Warren Brothers declined a point.

CURB VERY DULL.

Trading on the Curb was very dull and this market was irregular as to price tendency. Leaders were Boston & Montana, Gray Top, Eureka and Mutual. Gains at noon included Eureka 1 cent at 23 cents, Mutual 1 cent at 30 cents and Boston Ely 1 cent at 59 cents. Among losses were Boston & Montana 2 cents at 43 cents, Crystal 2 cents at 57 cents and Calumet & Jerome 4 cents at 24. Gray Top lost its opening gain of 2 cents.

Metal Market

New York, Feb. 17.—Metal prices were: Copper, all positions offered 12⅞. Lead, all positions offered 4⅝. Spelter, spot, 4.47½ to 4.52½; February and March offered 4.52.

STYLE CHANGES CAUSE WASTE IN BUSINESS

Spillane Explains That Fashions Whims Are Harmful to Sellers

By RICHARD SPILLANE.

Philadelphia, Feb. 17. — America lays a very high tribute each year on the altar of style. In the war days someone connected with the War Industries Board found on investigation that there were about 300 different styles of one kind of women's garments being made. Of automobile tires there were about seventy varieties.

It was so in almost everything from locomotives and box cars, shoes and socks, hats and hatchets, down to fire extinguishers, hay rakes, hammers and saws. Saving of material, labor, transportation and money was imperative. The board ordered the number of styles of women's garments in question reduced from about 300 to 100; of the variety of automobile tires from about seventy to seven and of various other articles of general use in varying proportions.

With the close of the war these restrictions, of course, lapsed.

Variety has a virtue but carried to an extreme it entails great waste.

Some of the illustrations the War Industries Board gave of the losses through an unreasonable and wholly unnecessary number of styles were striking.

Tires may serve as an example. It was pointed out that an establishment that endeavored to carry a fair number of all of the seventy various kinds of tires would have $50,000 or $100,000 tied up in stock. With a much curtailed number of styles a dealer could carry all the varieties in a stock representing $20,000 or $40,000, have a quicker turnover, require fewer salesmen, less showroom space and have a larger profit.

"Dead" stock and slow moving goods represent heavy costs. Quick moving goods mean profit. Reduction in styles of tires, it was argued, would give mobility to money in the industry in all its departments from manufacturer down to the retailer.

The war industries people confessed they were drastic in the cuts they ordered. They justified their action by the urgent need of the time but they insisted that business in general would profit by the lesson of the war period and that it would result in permanent reduction in styles of all characters of goods.

They were in error in the last particular. There has been a return to the old order. Variety in shoes never was greater than immediately after the war. Extremes in style ran riot.

FAMOUS TITLES TEST BEGINS ON MAR. 1

Open to Every Reader of the Boston American; $5,000 in Awards to Be Won

By THE TEST EDITOR.

The Boston American's $5,000 Famous Title Test, which opens in these columns on Wednesday, March 1, will be open to every reader of this newspaper.

Each day, for 60 days, the Boston American will print a Test Drawing. There will be a new drawing every day. These pictures will be printed without their titles. Those who take part in the Test will be asked to write the Correct Title; and $5,000 will be divided among the participants who send in the largest numbers of Correct Titles at the close of the Test.

Leading up to the Famous Titles Test, the Boston American offers another $5,000 to those who secure the largest numbers of New Contestants.

HERE ARE AWARDS.

This particular contest—the "Membership Competition"—is open only to those who took part in the recent Book Test. There are 219 prizes, ranging from Five to One Thousand Dollars:

First Award — For the largest number of New Contestants.	$1,000
Second Award — For the next largest number of New Contestants.	750
Third Award — For the next largest number of New Contestants.	500
Fourth Award — For the next largest number of New Contestants.	400
Fifth Award — For the next largest number of New Contestants.	300
Sixth Award — For the next largest number of New Contestants.	200
Seventh Award — For the next largest number of New Contestants.	150
Eighth Award — For the next largest number of New Contestants.	100
Ninth Award — For the next largest number of New Contestants.	50
100 Awards of $10 Each — For the 100 next largest numbers.	1,000
110 Awards of $5 Each — For the 110 next largest numbers.	550
Total	$5,000

While the Membership Competition is showing signs of life, it is not what it should be. It still is possible for a "live one" to make his first start today and lead the field at the finish.

New Contestants must be persons who did NOT take part in the Book Test. There is no other restriction. As all the members of a family may take part in one of the Title Tests, so all the members of a family may become New Contestants. It is permissible to obtain New Contestants outside your own town or city, and outside your State, so long as they are residents of New England or Canada.

BIG OPPORTUNITY.

The Test Editor feels that he has said all that can be said about the Membership Competition. It is one of the best and biggest opportunities ever offered by a New England newspaper. If it is money you want, the Membership Competition should give it to you. Get busy today and you can knock over one of the nine larger awards.

The $5,000 MUST BE WON!

Remember the day and date. Wednesday, March 1. Tell your friends.

The parcels of Book Test pictures sent in by 6,000 contestants now have been "checked," with the result that the highest score revealed so far is fifty-three Correct Titles. The scoring is likely to be completed by Saturday of next week. The re-checking—of all those parcels which appear to be "in the money"—will occupy Monday and perhaps Tuesday of the following week. Nine Calls then will be made upon, or letters sent, to those who appear to be the Nine Leaders and with all possible speed the Result of the Book Test will be announced in the Boston American.

Highest score up to date, then, is fifty-three Correct Titles.

TWO OPINIONS.

Believing that the best way to make the Title Tests clear to everybody is to print the letters of participants, the Test Editor today offers two on the subject of the same drawing. You will observe that the writers are not in agreement. With two exceptions, the re-printing of every Book Test Drawing has been followed by the receipt of a leter or two asking that it be "thrown out of the Test."

Book Test Editor:

Just a word of commendation for your action on No. 40. This was one of the rare cases where two titles in the list fitted perfectly. A careful weighing of both led me to use "Warning," but I believe your action in calling either correct will go far in making friends of those who chose "Precaution." I have missed one in the first forty, but know the bumps are coming soon. I would feel stronger if I had used "John-a-Dreams" and "The Conqueror." I had both these titles but rejected them for two that looked better.

May I make one suggestion? You have had two contests in which the text largely governed the answer and one with pictures entirely free of "conversation." I believe the great majority prefer the former type. Why not, in the coming contest, give us both kinds, half with text and half without. As you said the other day, "a little of this and a little of that." Regards to Mr. Artist, and tell him for me that if we both live long enough I'll "get him yet." With best wishes.

Newburyport. G. M. B.

Title Test Editor:

Your decision on No. 40 is "too much." Under picture No. 40 was pr[illegible] the identical clipping here attached. ("One of these titles fits today's picture better than any other," etc.) It is certainly unfair to the "Warning" crowd to call "Precaution" correct, and equally unfair to the "Precaution" crowd to call "Warning" correct. On this one title may hang the winning or loss of the First Award.

There can be but one Correct Title and that is the title that YOU Mr. Editor, sent the artist for illustration. Play square and give us your decision; was it "Warning" or "Precaution"?

Rutland. J. F. W.

The words having been discovered to have the same meaning, and the drawing plainly being one that illustrates either "Warning" or "Precaution," either of these titles will be marked "correct." The "telltale" either warns or precautions the freight brakeman of his approach to a low overhead bridge. No person who wrote either title CAN be charged with an error.

GRATITUDE TO CRITICS.

Book Test Editor:

This is the first time that I ever started, finished and sent in a set of answers to any contest. I find by watching the pictures from day to day that up to yesterday I had only three wrong out of the first twenty-eight and if I had used a little more thought I would have had them ALL right. Out of those that remain I may have ten wrong. If some of us would pay more attention to the rules and to what you say, and less to fault-finding, there would not be so many kickers. I have enjoyed the test to the utmost and will be all ready for the ne[illegible] W. G.

Lynn.

Which leads the Test Editor to express his gratitude to his critics, many of whom have helped to make each succeeding Title Test MUCH better than the one before. Many faults, many weaknesses, have been pointed out by the so-called "kickers." An occasional letter may sound unreasonable, but most of these probably are written thoughtlessly. Nobody likes to lose $1,000.

Test Editor:

In looking over last night's paper I had to grin to myself when I read about the train dispatcher and the commercial traveler walking off with the First Prize of $1,000 and the Second Prize of $750 for introducing New Contestants. There are a great many people, Mr. Editor, who never say anything but who are found around the top when the race is over.

Up to the present writing I have signed up . . . and I have made up my mind not to stop until I have . . . Please do not print the figures, as it may cause the two you have referred to to work harder, or others may be attacked with cold feet and quit. With best wishes, T. J. M.

Your figures probably would not scare anyone, but I respect your wishes.—Test Ed.

Dear Mr. Editor:

I am a new reader of the Boston American, through the Book Test. I like the paper and I think the Tests are just fine. They certainly do sharpen the wits. I think the titles have all been fair and square, even though I have lost nine. I can't just help adding a little kick, now, to help the other kickers along. Regarding Picture No. 34, "Ulysses."

I understand clearly that it was not necessary to have read THAT book to get that title and yet one must have known something about the story of Ulysses to have named the drawing. Is that right?

We have not all received good educations and therefore many of us never heard of Ulysses. There are other drawings like that one. No. 31 was one, "Samson," but most of us have received some religious education and so we will not kick about that one. I hope the pictures in the next Test will be such that one can get the right titles, even if she has not had a good education. Don't think I want them "easier." Make them hard. It's more fun! R. F.

Holyoke.

When you saw the word "Ulysses in the List of Titles, R. F., there was only one thing to do. If you did not know the story Ulysses it was up to you to consult the reference books. The Test Editor, who had to do exactly that, went first to the Encyclopedia Britannica in the Public Library and was led from that to Pope's translation of the Odyssey. This inquiry led to a determination to read the entire book, and the Iliad as well, and he sincerely hopes (having been working since before his twelfth birthday) that similar inspiration may move many others who, taking up the Title Tests, are led on to Better Readinng.

KNOW LIST OF TITLES.

Many Test Pictures, of course, will be as simple and as easy as "The Seven Houses," "Tam O'Shanter," or "Untilled Fields." On days like that, write the answer and leave it. On another day a picture like No .34 will appear. You cannot fathom it. It puzzles you. On that day decide to KNOW THE LIST OF TITLES.

Other contestants, who have criticized the "drawing" of No. 34, are requested to see Pages 1964 and 2580 of Webster's New International Dictionary.

Just a word or two, now, about today's re-prints. Clovis, King of the FRANKS, showed his fearlessness on many a battlefield. In one battle, against Alaric, king of the Visigoths, Clovis slew his enemy with his own hands. He certainly was both FRANK AND FEARLESS.

In No. 46, the artist shows us the first crude human means for grinding grain for food. This natural rock, having a bowl-like depression in it, served as a mortar, while the long cone-shaped stone was used as a pestle with which to grind maize or corn in the hollow rock. This device, originating in the early Stone Age, the artist offers as representative of an ANCIENT ART.

"Art—The combination or modification of things to adapt them to a given end; the employment of given means to effect a purpose."

Cotton Goods Quiet

The textile strike has had no quickening effect upon the cotton goods trade, it remaining very quiet. It is said that present offerings represent a desire to dispose of goods rather than to carry them through the current unsettlement. New Bedford, the fine goods centre, is estimated to be operating not better than 60 per cent. on orders. Some of the fine goods mills are believed to have unusually large stocks on hand. Fall River is running at about 70 per cent. capacity.

Denies Ford Rumor

The following telegram was received by the J. W. Maguire Company, No. 742 Boylston street, distributors for the Pierce Arrow cars for this territory: "Rumor that Ford obtaining control of Pierce Arrow absolutely unfounded. Use this telegram for denial. Pierce Arrow Motor Car Co., M. E. Forbes, Pres."

This telegram was sent out to distributors because of an article which recently appeared in a certain financial newspaper in New York.

Rail Earnings in December

While twelve roads have yet to report, returns to the Interstate Commerce Commission as to net operating income for December made by 189 Class 1 carriers total $42,652,398, against $10,410,404 for the corresponding month in 1920. As recent reports have varied between incomes and deficits, and it remains to be seen what the twelve roads not yet reported will show.

Automobile Statistics

This country's output of automobiles, including passenger cars and trucks, in 1921 totaled 1,575,686 vehicles, according to statistics by a tire concern. ENGLAND'S BANK RATE CUT IS 'COMEBACK'

Means Advancing Financial Strength, but Dull Business, Says Evans

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—The tardy reduction in the Bank of England rate from 5 to 4½ per cent. when the latter rate has prevailed at some of our Federal reserve banks for week, even Cleveland being on that level, is highly interesting whether one is looking backward or forward in the course of world trade.

Call loans have been made in London as low lately as 1 per cent. and treasury bills are based on 3½ per cent. It has accordingly been remarked that "London is bidding for the world's business," not that that is a rare incident in history. It is bidding no more than ever and succeeding in its bids less than usual because of the disjointedness of the times.

Whatever may be said about low rates in this country, the decline in England means dull business, the stagnation that we have so much feared in the United States, for probably a period of many months. Small exports from the United States, as indicated by the report for January, have the same significance. The countries of the world do not start on recovery at the same moment and at an equal pace. We have began in a small way, but across the water one can see nothing more impressive than certain symptoms.

DANCE OF FINANCES.

Historically this reduction to 4½ per cent. furnishes a sharp contrast. On August 1, 1914, the Bank of England's rate was 10 per cent., having reached that figure by stages from the 3 per cent. prevailing earlier in the year.

That monument of a panic time did not last beyond August 6, when the rate was reduced to 6 per cent. At that time sterling exchange went considerably above par because this country had debts immediately payable in London.

From that level we have since seen it go down to about 3.18 and now they are where we are, around 4.36. The present generation has had the thrill of seeing the finances of an unquestionably strong country dancing about in the most grotesque way.

Later development was the tremendous unloading of American securities held in England, reaching $2,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000, depending on your capacity as a guesser. We welcomed these securities (at low prices) as our children returning from a trip to Europe. They are still with us in the main and the income from them paid to our own people diminishes by so much the "invisible balance" that has always been so much counted on by the British to offset the balance in the merchandise trade. The ease of payment is among the memories of that time, also the lift in sterling which we were obliged to bid to pay for those bonds.

WE OWE MUCH TO LONDON.

Which is a reminder that we are in a way much indebted to London because it largely carried us along to the independent position now held by the United States by buying our railroad bonds, real estate mortgages, etc.

That we have now a strong back and good legs should not obliterate a sense of this fact, nor lead us to believe that London will necessarily hold a secondary place in the finances of the world for a long period.

The Old Lady of Threadneedle Street is not loved so warmly now as when she was younger, and particularly has Germany grown cold to everything British for reasons which will occur to anybody. Some of Great Britain's own daughters have passed into a status of almost impudent independence, even leaving Ireland out of account.

But she will be young and vigorous again some time and probably richer than ever, and then hearts will bulge with affection for her.

Cast up all the conditions that have made Britain great and then decide whether London will or will not come back.

The British go forward to the performance of their work in a lumbering but highly intelligent way and are even contemplating the payment of the debt of their government to the United States government, while certain of the continental nations cavalierly take the ground that such debt is a sort of joke.

It is expedient for us to be friends with this old girl, now crippled but sometime to have freshened blood and muscles. She has been a little slow in reducing the bank rate but she does not necessarily follow the example of the upstart of the Western Hemisphere in all its financial performances.

Copper Price Shaded

Copper sellers are still shading prices in the effort to induce buying. A local financial publication has heard the sale of a small amount of metal at less than 13 cents a pound f. o. b. New York. A New York statement is that domestic transactions have been for less than 13¼ cents and that aside-ship metal is easily obtainable at 13½ cents.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Feb. 17.—Responding to firm cables, and a higher stock market, the cotton market opened steady today, 6 to 15 points higher. Spot houses and Wall Street interests were the chief buyers early, and in the face of unloading and moderate pressure from New Orleans and Japanese concerns the list held well after the start, and was about 15 to 17 points net higher on active options. Opening prices were: March, 17.75; May, 17.45; July, 16.92; October, 16.48; December, 16.33.

Wall Street Briefs

The steamship Olympic landed $4,807,000 in gold from Europe in New York this week, most of the yellow metal being consigned to Kuhn, Loeb & Company.

The distribution on Cities Service Company Bankers shares to be made on April 1 to holders of record March 15 will consist of 5c cash scrip and 12½c stock scrip on each share.

The $2,800,000 in gold just received in New York from Sweden was of Russian origin and consigned to the Guaranty Trust Company.

Railroad Items

During the first eleven days of February cars loaded on the St. Paul Railway and received loaded from connections totalled 55,861 compared with 45,073 year ago.

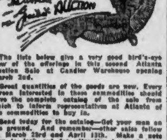

The Illinois Central and the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans have applied for authority to issue $1,924,400 of their joint first and refunding mortgage 5 per cent. bonds.

Gold and Silver Prices

Bar gold was unchanged at 95s. 7d. an ounce in London today, while silver advanced ½d. to 34½d. an ounce.

Two Pictures of the Soldier of the World War

They Won't Make Him Feel Happy, Perhaps, but Then He Hasn't Any REASON for Feeling Happy

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

"MY LAD, I ENVY YOU"

Here you see the soldier made blind in war, and the patriot who got rich while the war was on. The gentleman that got rich and stayed home tells the blind soldier, "I envy you." Then he goes off and tells somebody else that it would be "dangerous at this time, in view of the many demands on the taxpayer, even to consider seriously the bonus for the soldiers."

The soldier is blind. Luckily, he cannot read all that is said about the good reasons for leaving him where he is, at the mercy of poverty and a small pension.

The second picture shows what has happened to more than one man who was told as he marched away that "the country could never do enough for him." It was a truthful statement, for the country HASN'T done enough for him yet, hasn't done anything, and apparently it never WILL. Therefore it is to be presumed that it never "COULD."

The country that could find fifty thousand million dollars to fight in Europe, and that can't find a dollar for the soldiers' bonus, now that war is over, might glance at these two pictures.

They are from "The Soldier," published by Arthur Young, who takes a rather bitter view of life. Where soldiers are concerned the bitter view is justified.

Starving Ex-Service Man: "What! Ten cents on the medal? Why, they told me it was priceless."

You can imagine the feeling, when you stand up straight, many soldiers looking on, as the medal is pinned on your breast, and then THIS picture.

Say, if you choose, that the picture is exaggerated, that comparatively few starving men are trying to raise money on their war medals. Possibly, but no picture ever made was half as much exaggerated as the promises made to the soldiers. And if these pictures should stir up any interest—in Congress, for instances—the space they occupy won't be wasted. At any rate, it may give some soldier a little gloomy satisfaction to have their case presented in black and white, even if it can't be successfully presented in Congress.

Some soldiers might like to read two choruses that Arthur Young prints. The first is supposed to be sung when the soldier WENT AWAY to fight.

"We're for you, my hearty."
"You're the noble party."
"Give a rousing cheer—o."
"You will be a hero."
"Oh, you dandy doughboy."

The other was sung when the soldier came BACK expecting that some of the many promises would be made good.

You can be a trump, boy.
Or perhaps a scamp, boy.
"We'd like to help you, but—"
"We're sorry for you, but—"
"We're thankful to you, but—"
"We've nothing just now, BUT—"

Should Have the Right to Summon Witnesses

Board of Public Utilities Deprived of Essential Powers by Secret Politics of Managers of Private Corporations

The other day, on being questioned by counsel for the Boston American, an official of the Edison company tried to explain why the public lighting plant in Cleveland was able to sell electricity for three cents when his Edison company in Boston was obliged to charge eleven cents for it. Among other things, he said that the Cleveland plant in Cleveland had no competition from gas and that the Cleveland plant was losing money and customers anyway, because the service it was able to give at three cents was so poor.

Counsel for the Boston American asked him where he obtained his information, and he said from the manager of the Cleveland plant. Counsel for the Boston American asked what the name of the manager was, and he said he did not know and that he did not ask; that he called him up on the telephone and got his information thus by long distance. Counsel for the Boston American asked him whether he knew whether the manager's name was Davis and he said he did not know.

As a matter of fact the manager of the public plant in Cleveland which is selling electricity for three cents is named Davis. Counsel for the Boston American immediately telegraphed Mr. Davis, asking if the statement of the Edison company's official was true, and Mr. Davis replied immediately by telegraph that it was not true; that they had competition not only with gas, but with natural gas, and that the company was not losing money but making money, and that it was not losing customers but was getting more customers faster than it could increase its plant.

At the close of the Edison rate hearing on Monday, counsel for the Boston American offered this telegram in evidence, whereupon counsel for the Edison leaped to his feet and energetically objected, upon the ground that he had no opportunity to cross-examine Manager Davis. Whereupon the counsel for the Boston American asked if it was to be a rule that evidence before a board which had no power to summon witnesses and compel them to answer would nevertheless subject itself to the limitations of evidence in a court having such power.

Thereupon the counsel for the Edison shouted that he was quite willing that authority should be given to the Board of Public Utilities, before which the case was being tried, to summon witnesses and put them under oath. Counsel for the city immediately demanded of Mr. Ives, attorney for the company, whether he would go before the legislative committee and state that he was willing that the board should have this power. He replied that he would. Then counsel for the Boston American asked him if he was willing to say so privately to the leaders of the Legislature for it is the private communications that have killed bills giving this power to the Public Utilities Board. To this he did not reply.

One of the evils of private management of our public utilities is here illustrated. The Public Utilities Board is constituted of men whose ability and experience would qualify them to sit in any court of the State. They hear causes of far greater average importance than the causes heard by any of our courts. Yet though petty police courts and even the Boxing Commission of this State are given the power to summon witnesses and to put them under oath and compel them to testify, this Public Utilities Board, which is given the responsibility of regulating our great public service corporations, is denied the power so essential to the performance of judicial duties. It has frequently asked for this power and though the representatives of the corporations did not go formally before the legislative committee to oppose it, yet the power has always been denied.

The secret political power of the private managers of these public service corporations has thus been sufficient to deprive their regulating body of its essential powers. That is one of the most unhealthy conditions in our alleged democracy. To abolish this invisible government is one of the great objects of public operation of our public utilities service corporations.

The Public Interest in Coal

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

In the last act of his Senatorship, William S. Kenyon has introduced a bill to regulate the coal industry. It contains as its basic principles:

The paramount interest of the public in coal's production and distribution.

Need of human standards in fixing wages and working conditions.

"Prudently and honestly invested" capital to have an adequate return.

Right of labor and capital to organize and bargain collectively; right of non-union miners to work in peace.

Admirable, all; but futile until enforced.

In the Senate Mr. Kenyon might have helped in their enforcement—as a judge in Iowa he will be merely a looker-on.

The "paramount interest of the public" will remain a mere figure of speech until some fighting statesman cuts his way through the underbrush to a plan of public control which will see that the people are not pillaged at every turn.

Were Kenyon that kind of statesman, he would not be retiring to a life asylum.

May the work he lays down find a taker with the requisite staying power!

DO YOU GIVE REASONS FOR YOUR "DON'TS"?

If you tell a child to do a certain thing, tell the kiddie why—give some reason for a command—it sets better.

It is natural for children to want to know the reason why they are not permitted to do certain things.

As a matter of fact, it shows they have reasoning ability to want to know the reason.

Children learn by instruction and experience.

You will have much better success in controlling them if you give reasons.

Be sure your reasons are logical.

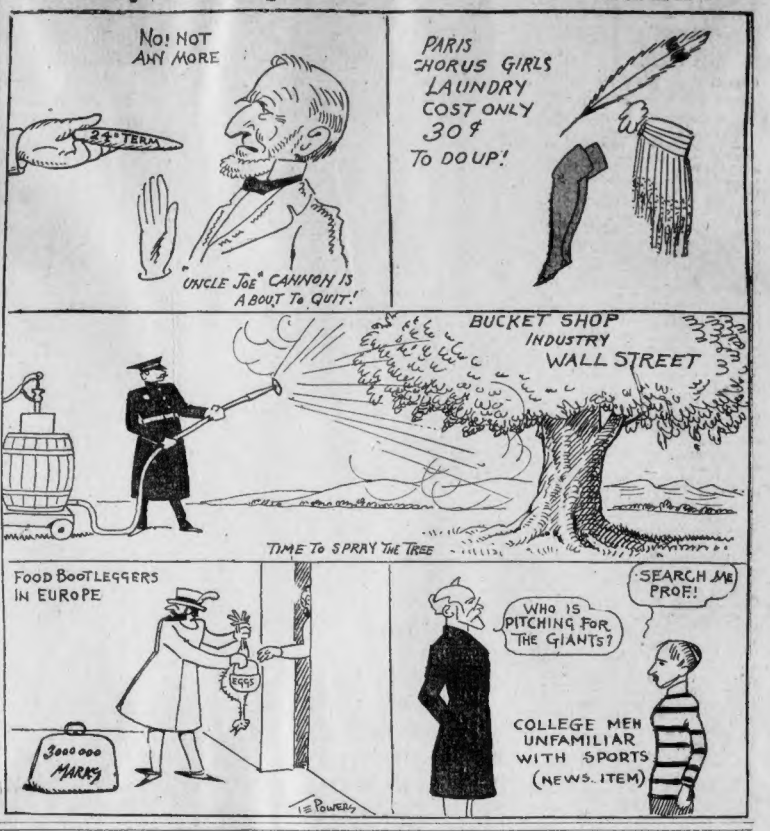

It is not sufficient to say, "I do not want you to do that," or "don't do that because I SAY SO."

Occasionally it is well to appeal to a child's courtesy—their sense of deferring to another's preference, but usually let them learn why there is objection to the forbidden thing.

Most parents have too many don'ts and too few do-this-or-that.

Ex-Soldier Lost in Chicago Jail

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—How a man was lost for forty days in the jails of Chicago was revealed recently. He is James Skubski, a former soldier, arrested for stealing towels from a hotel. A court clerk's error caused all trace of him to be lost.

Unable to understand English, Skubski did not know what was happening when he was arraigned in the Sheffield Court last December. A policeman told the court Skubski pleaded guilty to the charge of larceny. Seven towels had been stolen from the fashionable Edgewater Hotel, where the former soldier was employed. He was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction.

The court clerk, through error, sent the prisoner to the county jail instead of the House of Correction.

It was not until county jail prisoners were being checked that he was found. Nobody knew who he was or what he was doing in jail. He gave his name, but it was not on the jail records. After a long search it was found he had been a defendant in the Sheffield Court. Then the error was discovered. The story of his hasty sentence also was revealed.

Superior Judge David had the prisoner arraigned and questioned him. When he learned the facts he ordered his release, temporarily.

Judge David indicated he would demand a new trial for the prisoner. Skubski's discharge papers showed he had a splendid war record.

Stars and Stripes

It is reported that the World War has brought about a revival of religion; but the war may not be the cause. There are so many Fords out on Sundays now that people who own other kinds of cars are flocking to the churches for safety.

POLISH THEM OFF WITH AN ADJECTIVE OR TWO

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

DOLLAR AMERICANS, that is what Europeans used to call us; and long after the worship of Mammon had become the universal cult.

In those days, it was deemed a social disgrace in England to be a "shopkeeper," or otherwise engaged "in trade"; the while they kept fairly busy trying to marry off their impecunious "noblemen" to daughters of our most conspicuously successful "dollar-hunters" in this "nation of shopkeepers."

However, in these days, it is not even necessary to indulge in satirical flings at a hypocritical Europe which has so successfully hunted our good American dollars, that we are now their hopeless creditors for eleven billions of them!

The characterization is recalled in this connection, because it serves as a convenient illustration of the common and unfair habit of polishing off peoples and persons with an adjective or two.

Similarly, we talk of the "insular" Briton. Probably there is no nation whose average members are more educated in the cosmopolitan spirit and more habituated to the world-wide outlook in thought and in conversation than those same insular Britons.

Keenest Thinkers

And we speak of the "volatile" Frenchman. As though it were literally true that Johnny Crapaud could not possibly carry on a telephone conversation unaided, since he is presumed to need both of his hands for gesticulation.

Nevertheless, those same supposedly superemotional Frenchmen are the subtlest analysts, the keenest thinkers and the clearest formulators on earth today.

The Germans, before they were polished off as "culture-rattling," we used to call "beer-drinking, pipe-smoking Teutons." But those same slow Teutons, even before the terrible days of 1914-1918, made England, America and Japan hustle in commercial rivalry for the markets of the earth.

And so one might continue to illustrate the ridiculous custom of polishing off whole nations with superficial designations which in no wise really characterize their complex composition.

But it is more to our purpose to call attention to that same habit in our characterization of one another as individuals. We do not like it when we ourselves are thus victimised; yet it is the rarest person who does not indulge in that convenience of thought and speech.

That man, for instance, is "materialistic!" Perhaps he is, in his philosophy. He is not a churchman and he refuses to accept an idea that cannot be demonstrably proven. He is your typical Man from Missouri. But he is a loyal husband, a devoted father, a business man of the highest integrity, a lover of books and music and art, a faithful friend and—

Why go farther to write his biography? This diagnosis of the man was only made in order to show how unfair it is to so complex and so fine a personality to label it merely as "materialistic."

Over there is a "woman of the streets." Which she is; and it is a serious defect. But she is, besides that, wholesome and sweet, despite all the past. The gold in her has been purified in the furnace of adversity.

Again, examples might be multiplied endlessly; but they would simply further illustrate, as you can readily do for yourself, our irresponsible way of mutual dismissal with meaningless adjectives.

There is a reason for this habit. It is one of the phases of the working of the Law of Ease. It is an expression of intellectual laziness.

For, obviously, it is easier to polish off, with an adjective or two, some person or a people under consideration than it is to take the time and care necessary for accurate diagnosis and just judgment.

However, that is precisely what the decent democrat must do.

Exceedingly Complex

We should realize—if we are trying to live up to the ethics of democracy—that human nature is exceedingly complex, that the motives of human beings always are mixed, and that peoples as well as persons are made up of a variety of elements, and their character and conduct the outcome of even contradictory interests, impulses, ambitions and aspirations.

If the nations knew these psychological facts about one another, and respected them, we would amazingly minimize war; because their better mutual understanding would more easily move them to justice and reasonable adjustment than to resentment and irrational conflict.

So, also, if we individuals respected one another as we respect ourselves—as the Law of Democracy bids us do—we would realize that others are as complex and as many-motived as we are.

Instead, then, of polishing off one another with an obvious adjective or two, we would probe deep and tenderly for the particular motive in a given moment, and otherwise reserve our judgment.

Three Epidemics in London

The number of influenza victims collapsing suddenly in the street is increasing.

Tramway car conductors and policemen are notably affected, and there are few business offices without some absentees. More than 300 girl employes of an insurance company are on sick leave.

Several sessions courts in the provinces have had to be adjourned, the records and barristers having been attacked by influenza. Lancashire and Yorkshire are suffering very badly and the death rate is heavy.

The diphtheria outbreak in London is severe, and the number of patients in the Metropolitan Asylum Board's hospitals constitutes a new record. There are 3,125 cases, as compared with 2,562 and 1,821 at the same periods of 1921 and 1920.

According to an official of the board, the type is more virulent than usual, especially among children.

Scarlet fever is still very prevalent, but it is of a mild type, and the number of patients is now on the decrease.

In the twelve hospitals controlled by the board there is at present a combined total of 8,295 patients.
